Methodist Bishops Given New Assignments

BISHOP MURRAH IS NEW PRELATE FOR THIS DISTRICT

Bishop Candler Gets Rearranged District, Including Virginia, Louisiana and Baltimore.

AINSWORTH IS PLACED IN SOUTH GEORGIA

General Shifting in Bishops by Conference. Dickey Goes to Texas and New Mexico.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Hot Springs, Ark., May 19.—Important changes in the assignments of members of the college of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and numerous shiftings in territory embraced in the Episcopal districts were announced tonight by the college, which is meeting in connection with the general conference of the denomination here.

With the addition of Horace M. Dubose, of Berkeley, Cal., all present members of the college are given new assignments while of the five men elected bishop at this conference, all but one—J. E. Dickey, of Griffin, Ga., will be sent to the foreign missionary fields. Bishop Dubose will remain in charge of the Arizona-Pacific-Northwest district, and Bishop-elect Dickey will have the district embracing these conferences:

New Mexico, Northwest Texas, West Texas and Central Texas.

Candler's New Charge. Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, will be in charge of a rearranged district which contains the conferences of Virginia, Louisiana and Baltimore.

Bishop James Atkinson, of Nashville, who had the Tennessee-Tennessee district, goes to the Arkansas district, which includes the North Arkansas and Little Rock conferences.

Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, Va., is shifted from the Kentucky-Illinois district to the North and South Carolina district.

Murrah Comes Here. Bishop William B. Murrah, of Memphis, whose district the last four years included the Missouri conference and Denver, Colo., goes to the Alabama-North Georgia district, and Bishop William F. McMurray, of Louisville, is given the Missouri-Denver district.

Other assignments include: Bishop Edwin D. Moulton, of Tulsa, Okla., changed from the Oklahoma-Indian district to the Tennessee district; Bishop John M. Moore, of Nashville, from the Brazil district to the Texas-Oklahoma district; Bishop U. V. W. Darlington, of Huntington, W. Va., from the Carolina district to the Kentucky-Illinois district; Bishop William Ainsworth, of Macon, Ga., goes from the Texas district to that which includes the North Mississippi, South Georgia, Mississippi and Florida conferences, while Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala., will have these conferences: Mexico, Western Mexican mission, Texas-Mexican mission, Cuba and the Congo mission.

Assignment for the four new bishops going abroad follow:

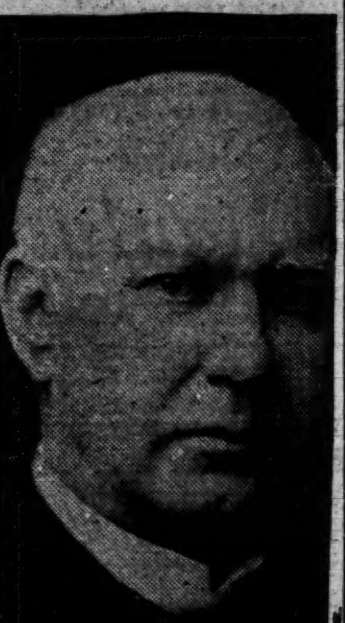

William B. Beauchamp, of Nashville, Europe, headquarters Brussels, Belgium; Samuel B. Hay, Houston, Texas, China, headquarters Shanghai; Hoyt M. Dobbs, Anniston, Ala., Brazil, headquarters Sao Paulo; Hiram A. Boaz, Dallas, Texas, Siberia-Manchuria, headquarters, Seoul, Korea.

BISHOP CANDLER TO RETAIN HEADQUARTERS IN ATLANTA

Assignment of Bishop Warren A. Candler to the conference of Louisiana, Virginia and Baltimore and the assignment of Bishop William Belton Murrah to the North Georgia and Alabama conferences does not mean that Bishop Candler will move his home from Atlanta, according to Dr. W. F. Melton, of Emory university. Dr. Melton said the rearrangement of territory means that Bishop Candler will be in charge of new fields and will have direction of the church affairs in those fields. He will retain his headquarters in Atlanta and travel over his new territory as his presence is needed.

Bishop William Belton Murrah, who will have charge of the North Georgia and Alabama territory, is one of the oldest bishops in the Methodist

ROBERT M. COOK WILL TAKE PART IN FOREST TOUR

Assistant U. S. District Attorney in Charge of Department Used to Acquire Georgia Lands.

CONSTITUTION'S PLAN GIVEN HIS APPROVAL

Colonel William Greeley Writes Letter Approving Work Being Done in Interest of Forests.

Expressing cordial approval of the plan of The Constitution to conduct a party of government forestry and highway officials and members of congress on an inspection tour of the forests of north Georgia during the week beginning Monday, May 29, Assistant United States District Attorney Robert M. Cook Friday characterized the move as highly constructive in every phase and fraught with great possibilities of public service.

Mr. Cook announced that he will make the tour of the north Georgia forestry region with The Constitution party to gain first-hand information concerning the lands in the forest section.

Mr. Cook will make the trip to inspect personally the character and type of the lands which are to be purchased by the government and which already have been purchased by the government. Mr. Cook has charge of the legal machinery which is used by the government to acquire these lands. Some of the purchases have been under his supervision and a large portion of the lands needed to complete the Cherokee and Nantahala forest reservations will be purchased upon his recommendation.

First-Hand Information. "It is my desire to make this trip so that I can see these lands and get first-hand information which will enable our office to make complete replies to all inquiries which may be directed toward us in the future. I think The Constitution is performing a distinct public service in seeking to turn public attention to the valuable work being done and which is to be done by the forestry bureau in the preservation and development of these forest areas," he said.

WELLBORN BACKS HARRIS' FEDERAL RESERVE BILL

In Address at Mobile, He Defends Reserve System and Outlines Its Policies.

SAYS SENATE MEASURE WILL AID STATE BANKS

Gives Figures in Contention That System Did Not Deflate Agricultural Products Prices.

Mobile, Ala., May 19.—(Special.) Defense of the federal reserve system's policy and endorsement of a bill amending the act so as to allow state banks with a capital of $15,000 to become members of the system under certain conditions introduced in the United States senate by Senator William J. Harris, of Georgia, featured the address of Governor M. H. Wellborn, of the Atlanta reserve bank, Friday before the Alabama bankers' convention.

At no time have federal reserve banks denied credit to farmers, he declared, but instead have always given particular attention to the smaller member banks administering such loans. Restriction of loans for luxuries was urged by the system, he continued, and the position taken that remaining credits should be utilized for taking care of the necessities of the people.

Attention to Small Banks. "Following out this line of thought, the federal reserve banks endeavored to restrict the extensions of credit to such purposes as outlined above, but in no instance did we withhold credits from the legitimate and necessary demands of trade and commerce," he said.

"So far as the farmers were concerned, we at no time denied them credit. Our officers and directors recognize that agriculture is foremost

Reports of 'War' In Savannah Are Ridiculed

Amicable Adjustment of Park Title Controversy Is Expected.

Savannah, Ga., May 18.—(Special.)—Reports of a possible "civil war" between the city of Savannah and the national guard company over the title and control of park extension, a vast parade ground in the heart of Savannah, were ridiculed here tonight, following the receipt of orders from Governor Thomas W. Lardwick that the militia "avoid a clash with municipal authorities."

The order of the governor as issued through the adjutant general of the state was discussed by interested parties, and while it was stated that there is no likelihood of a "war," the instructions will not affect the situation in the least. The park extension parade grounds have been tacitly for years recognized as under the control of the military. The title is said to be in the hands of the eleven military companies of Savannah.

Probes Title.

Recently, it is said, the military officers learned that the city was investigating the title and the mayor of Savannah asked Colonel R. J. Travis, commander of the 118th regiment here, to institute a friendly suit to determine for all time the title to the property. The colonel of the regiment has been acting as agent for the eleven commanding officers of the local military organization. He said that he had never heard of a "friendly suit," and it was suggested that the city institute an injunction suit to prevent exercise of control by the military officers over the property. The mayor, it is said, agreed to that line of procedure.

In Status Quo.

But today the statement is made that the city will not institute such injunction proceedings and the military officers of the 118th regiment, the executive

EAGLE BOAT WRECK EXPLAINS MYSTERY OF AERIAL FLEET

New York, May 19.—An Eagle boat number 17, a unit in the new "dry navy," was pounding to her death on the sand bars off Amagansett, Long Island, today after driving ashore in a fog and gale, residents of this and other Long Island towns began piecing together the story of a mysterious air fleet whose presence has baffled them and which now is said to have been used to aid run runners.

Presence of the Eagle boat in Long Island waters itself was a mystery until today. The wreck gave the first inkling that Eagle boats had been attached to the dry navy and were actively engaged in hunting run runners along the coast. Sailors admitted their duties and told of airplanes which run runners were using to warn the contraband fleet of the movements of the dry navy.

GOMPERS EXPECTS NO REAL RESULTS OF STEEL PARLEY

Statement of Judge Gary, After Conference at the White House, Is Declared "Bunk."

SAYS PROMISE MEANS 'ABSOLUTELY NOTHING'

Steel Workers Will Work Twelve-Hour Days Until Magnates Decide Otherwise, He Asserts.

BY CLAYTON WHITEHILL. United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, May 19.—President Harding is extremely hopeful that relief for employees in the steel industry is in sight as a result of the dinner conference at the white house Thursday night. But President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, is skeptical of the outcome and critical of the very conference itself.

According to the white house spokesman, the president is convinced that real reforms in the working hours of the employees in the steel industry will soon come forth, and he has every confidence that much good will come out of the conference.

The president feels it is extremely desirable from a progressively sociological viewpoint, it was said, that the twelve-hour day be abolished.

Calls It "Bunk." However, Gompers views the use of the white house by Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board, United States Steel corporation, to announce that the twelve-hour working day in the steel industry will be abolished "if and when practicable," as "typical of the present-day colonial effrontery of big business."

"That it should use the white house as a platform for such a statement is absolutely ridiculous," he said.

WOMAN BEATEN AND THEN ROBBED

Miss Thelma Duboise Tells Police She Was Thrown Out of Car After Taking Joyride.

Claiming to have been assaulted and robbed by a young man she did not know, with whom she went taxi riding Thursday, Miss Thelma Duboise, an attractive young woman who gave her address as a local hotel, is lying in a critical condition at Grady hospital, her body covered with bruises and contusions.

Miss Duboise told city detectives who are working on the case that she was enticed into the taxi cab by the stranger, whom she described as being tall, thin and neatly dressed, Thursday night. They drove to a lonely spot in DeKalb county, she said, where her companion attacked her, beating her, robbing her of $14 in money and several articles of jewelry, and then threw her out of the car into a lonely stretch of woodland.

The young woman remained unconscious until early Friday morning.

ONE PERSON DEAD AND SEVEN HURT IN AUTO SMASHES

John Jackson, Small Negro Boy, Instantly Killed When Struck by Automobile Near Home.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHES INTO TROLLEY CAR

C. H. Branch Crushed About Head and Rushed in Ambulance to the Atlanta Hospital.

One person is dead and seven are injured, four seriously, as the result of an outbreak of automobile accidents in the city Friday, the worst epidemic of its kind in several months.

John Jackson, a small negro boy, was killed early at night when he was struck by an auto near his home; the seriously injured are C. H. Branch, of 80 Forrest avenue; William Pitts, 5 years old, of 238 South Pryor street, A. A. Ross, of 86 Forrest avenue, and Mrs. Charles Ellis, of 103 Formwalt street.

Probably the worst accident of Friday occurred at 8 o'clock at night at Gordon and Atwood avenues when the automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Branch and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Ross, all of 80 Forrest avenue, were riding, collided with a street car.

Reached to Hospital. Mr. Branch, who is connected with the freight office of the Longville and Nashville railroad, was crushed about the head and was rushed by the Greenberg & Bond ambulance to the Atlanta hospital, where he is in a critical condition.

Mrs. Branch was only slightly scratched and bruised. Mr. Ross had several ribs broken and Mrs. Ross was badly cut on her face and right hand. Mr. Ross is connected with a local realty firm.

William, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Pitts, of 238 South Pryor street, was injured in front of his home Friday morning when, according to the statement of witnesses, he ran into the

Golden Jubilee Program Proves Great Success

Striking Pageant Will Be Presented for Last Time This Afternoon.

BY PARKS BUSE.

Depicting in elaborate and striking pageantry the expansion of Atlanta's public school system for the past five decades, more than 2,000 school children participated Friday night in a great celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the city's educational system.

The pageant went further than to show the progress made by the schools during the past 50 years. It went back to the days before Oglethorpe smoked the pipe of peace with the Indians, and presented the history of the state and the evolution of Atlanta from a village called Terminus.

Unfortunately, the Auditorium had many vacant seats Friday night, but the spectacle is to be repeated Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and anyone going will enjoy more than two hours' instructive and entertaining pageantry. Some idea of the magnitude of the presentation may be gained from the fact that the cast requires probably more performers than any similar affair ever seen in Atlanta.

Three Parts Presented. The presentation is divided into three major episodes, "Heritage," "Achievement" and "Promise."

An Indian campfire scene and a ritualistic dance by a group of young warriors is shown with the rise of the curtain. The opening episode then portrays the industry of our forefathers of the colonial days, the light-heartedness of Dixie before the civil war, the passing of the old south, the healing of wounds, the grim task of rebuilding, and the birth of the spirit of Atlanta.

Perhaps the most spectacular incident of the opening part is the colorful dance of the sunshines, flowers and butterflies, fruits, trees, rain and vegetables, in which pupils from

CHILE AND PERU NOT YET TACKLING BIG DIFFERENCES

Washington, May 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Chilean and Peruvian delegates to the Washington conference again exchanged opinions at a joint meeting today but adjourned until Monday without having fully joined the issues on any of the major problems confronting them.

As in the case of previous sessions of the conference, the discussion is understood to have fallen short of a direct issue because of the different viewpoints on which the two groups predicated their arguments.

GENOA CROP FINE, DECLARES GEORGE, AS PARLEY CLOSES

British Prime Minister Voices Satisfaction Over Many Conference Results in Valetictory Address.

FRIENDLY WARNING IS GIVEN RUSSIANS

Soviet Told Not to Argue for Debt Repudiation While Asking for New Credits.

Genoa, May 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—David Lloyd George, the British prime minister, in his valetictory address before the final plenary session of the economic conference today said the Genoa weather had been sunny and gloomy and that sometimes there had been thunderstorms, but all had ended today in a blue sky.

"That is the history of the conference," he added. "We needed all kinds of weather to make a good harvest; and if you take a good look at the conference you will find we have garnered fine crops."

"These crops," Mr. Lloyd George listed as the coming meeting at The Hague, the pact for non-aggression and the reports of the finance, transport and economic commissions.

"If these reports were adopted," said he, "they would help to restore the prosperity and vigor to depleted Europe. These technical reports alone justified the existence of the Genoa conference, but they must be incorporated into living practice—converted into gold."

Russia Problem. "The greatest interest and excitement centered on the question of the Russian problem. Russia with the outside world and the assistance the world was ready to give to restore Russia and rescue its people from misery," the premier declared, adding "it is a problem full of danger and difficulties; it is surrounded with a jumble of prejudices and wild passions."

"Let me say this about the conference," he said.

Mercer Begins Campaign to Secure Recognition as Official Educational Institution.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Jacksonville, May 19.—Plans for completing the $75,000,000 fund of the Southern Baptist convention will be outlined and an intensive worldwide campaign launched at a conference of Baptist leaders in Nashville June 20-21, it was announced at the convention today.

Plans call for forming of an organization somewhat similar to the one that obtained the original subscriptions and in addition to members of the conservation commission including the state and general secretaries, the president and secretary of the Women's Missionary Union, secretaries of other auxiliary organizations and a few representative pastors and laymen. Invitations also will be extended to the executive committee of the convention and of the women's union, state secretaries of the union,

WATKINS CHARTER FORCES PREPARE FOR HARD BATTLE

Two Meetings Are Held and Councilman Edgar Watkins Makes Address Before Civitan Club.

'WAKE UP DADDY' CLUB WORKING FOR BIG VOTE

Leaders of "Standpatters" Decide on Judge George Hillyer as Chief in the Runover Campaign.

With two meetings Friday and an address by Councilman Edgar Watkins before the Civitan club at the Kimball house, the supporters of Mr. Watkins' Atlanta plan, started aggressive action against the old charter forces in the runover campaign.

Friday night the "Wake-Up-Daddy" club, which helped to put the seventh ward in the Watkins column at the first election, met at the residence of M. W. Savage, 209 Lawton street, and its members pledged themselves to work and bring out at the election on May 30 "the biggest vote ever polled in the seventh ward."

The central advisory committee held a meeting in the office of Mr. Watkins in the Fourth National bank building and mapped out the plans of an intensive fight.

F. C. Rice, a member of the advisory committee, is president of the "Wake Up Daddy" organization, which he said will work in close touch with the central committee.

"The Watkins charter is drawn along the same line as the government of a great corporation," he stated, "and corporations have been developed through long years to the maximum of efficiency."

Councilman Watkins, speaking to the Civitans, fired the first broadside in his second engagement against the present charter.

He assailed the apportionment of

Felder Emphatic Denying Charges Made in Senate

In Letter to Senate, Says He Was Not "Run Out of Georgia."

Washington, May 19.—Emphatic denial of charges made recently in the senate in connection with a discussion of alleged graft cases against Thomas B. Felder, former Georgia attorney, was contained in a letter from Mr. Felder, which was submitted to the senate late today by Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York. The letter, Mr. Wadsworth said, "in a true sense, was a reply to charges," and he asked, therefore that it be printed in The Congressional Record.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, inquired of Mr. Wadsworth whether he would "personally endorse the statement." Mr. Wadsworth replied he had no means of ascertaining the truth of the assertion in the letter, and that Mr. Felder was a constituent of his whom he had met only a week ago. Mr. Caraway then announced that he expected tomorrow to discuss the case again.

Mr. Felder said in the letter that he did not want posterity to be told that he was guilty of charges of being "a lobbyist for the liquor ring," or that he had been indicted in South Carolina, or that he had been "run out of the state of Georgia." In support of his denial, he quoted a letter from former Governor N. E. Harris, of Georgia, in which the governor said "you put prohibition into effect in Georgia" and in which the debate involving Mr. Felder was characterized as a "gratuitous attack and an utterly unjust criticism."

Atlanta Demonstration.

Mr. Felder sought to refute the charge that he was "run out of the state of Georgia" with a statement that on the eve of his departure from the state and on the day of adjournment of the state legislature, which had passed the Felder home-dry law, a demonstration was held in the At-

TAX COMMITTEE TO URGE COUNCIL TO MAKE CHANGE

If Plan Is Adopted, Land Values Will Be Increased More Than $100,000,000 by 1925.

WOULD RAISE REVENUE OF THE CITY $1,500,000

Committee, However, Favors Reduction From 70 to 50 Per Cent of Property Value.

A plan, to be installed and applied by 1925, which will increase Atlanta's realty assessments by more than $100,000,000, estimated on the present 70 per cent rule of assessment, was recommended to city council Friday afternoon by the tax committee.

This plan proposes to change from the old method of assessments to a front foot basis.

Under the old method the assessors visit a parcel of property and appraise its value, land and improvements together. Under the front foot rule the land would be assessed separately and then the building, if any structure is on it, will be appraised for its value.

The committee recommended at the same time that council make a request of the tax assessors that no increase in general assessments be made for 1923, and that the only changes in assessed valuation be such as to work toward uniformity.

There was lengthy and earnest discussion between the committee and the tax assessors before installation of the new plan was decided upon.

$100,000,000 Increase. All three assessors were agreed that real estate assessment on a front-foot basis would be a more exact and scientific manner of valuation, but Assessor W. A. Hancock declared that if it were done this year it would raise assessments $100,000,000.

Atlanta's revenue would be $1,500,000 and the state and Fulton county would profit proportionately. It was pointed out that owners of real estate must pay to the state and county $1.05 every time they pay $1.50, the present municipal tax rate, to the city.

Unanimous opinion of the committee prevailed that when the front foot rule is inaugurated the basis of assessment should then be reduced from 70 per cent of the real estimated value of the property to 50 per cent, or lower. This would also reduce the amount of taxes the people of Atlanta are paying into the state and county coffers.

Resolution Passed.

Councilman Edgar Watkins drew a resolution which the committee accepted. It provided:

"Resolved, That the council recommend to the tax assessors that no increase in general assessments shall be made for the year 1923 and that the only changes in assessed valuations shall be such as to make for uniformity."

"That the assessors begin now to prepare assessments for the whole city on a front foot rule for land, but such assessments shall not be applied prior to the year 1925, because of the impossibility of completing such system prior to that date."

"That during the period prior to 1925, the assessors shall provide a lot survey and maps which shall give full information as to the size, both frontage and depth of all lots."

"That the council make provision for such survey and maps."

"That an appropriation of $1,000

MAYOR KEY IN BATTLE WITH POWER COMPANY

Mayor Key and the Georgia Railway and Power company entered another controversy Friday over the company's proposed digging of manholes and installation of transformers in the streets. The issue in the latest controversy is work to be done in Auburn avenue.

Mayor Key said he had been informed that the power company had notified the Pittman Construction company, awarded the contract to pave Auburn avenue, between Ivy street and Boulevard, not to proceed with the work until the power company installed its transformers and other electric conducting devices.

The mayor said his information was that the power company objected to conditions imposed by council limiting the size of the transformer stations.

"It's an outrage that the city has to be dictated to by the Georgia Railway and Power company on every paving project it undertakes," declared the mayor.

"It's an outrage that every time the city starts to pave a street it is confronted with the same game by the power company, acting on one excuse or another."

The mayor said he intended to instruct the Pittman company to go ahead with the paving.

TAX EQUALIZATION STATUTE UPHELD IN HIGHEST COURT

The Georgia supreme court Friday affirmed the decision of the Warren superior court which dismissed a case brought by C. E. McGregor and others in which the methods of assessing property for taxation in that county were assailed.

Mr. McGregor contended that assessment on his farm of 2,907 acres of land had been raised from $12,500 to $23,500 without giving him notice or a chance to be heard and that proper advertising had not been made. He also raised other grounds of unconstitutionality.

The tax equalization law of the state does not deny a taxpayer due process of law in a case where the value of a taxpayer's property, as returned by him is increased by the county board of equalizers, the supreme court ruled.

GOVERNOR REFUSES TO SEND TROOPS TO GUARD NEGRO

An appeal was made Friday by Judge Henry B. Strange, of Effingham county, to Governor Hardwick for a company of state militia to guard Joe Ruffin, a negro, charged with a statutory offense, who was placed on trial Friday at Springfield, Ga.

Fear of the possibility of violence to the prisoner was given by Judge Strange as the cause of his request. After investigating the situation and consulting the sheriff of Effingham county, who assured the governor that there was no need for apprehension, the governor declined to call out the troops.

Ruffin was granted a change of venue from Jenkins county, where the alleged crime was committed, and was acquitted in the Chatham superior court. He was reindicted in Jenkins county and again granted a change of venue to Effingham county.

Miss Laura Turman Dies at Residence After Long Illness

Miss Laura Belle Turman, one of the best known young women of Atlanta, only daughter of Mrs. W. H. Turman and the late W. R. Turman, died at the home, 44 Columbia avenue, Friday night after an illness of several months.

In addition to her mother, Miss Turman is survived by a brother, W. R. Turman, III. The body was removed to the chapel of Barclay & Brandon, and funeral arrangements will be announced at a later date.

DANGER IN FLOOD AREA DECREASING, ASSERTS GORDON

Although the Mississippi river has reached a mark which has never before been recorded, the forces working to prevent a further influx of the waters of the stream are more efficient than ever before, according to a statement made by General W. H. Gordon, commander of the fourth corps area of the United States army, who has just returned from a visit to the flooded regions of Louisiana and Mississippi.

A constant vigil is kept on all points along the threatened area, he stated, and the reserves are kept in constant readiness to give assistance wherever it is needed.

General Gordon said that Governor John R. Parker, of Louisiana, has been untiring in his efforts to save the low lying sections of his state from the threatened danger and that he has so perfected the organization of the flood fighters that further break in the levees are improbable. The danger, according to General Gordon, seems to be steadily decreasing.

HOUSE OF LORDS REFUSES PLACE TO LADY RHONIA

London, May 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—By a vote of 20 to 1 the committee on privileges of the house of lords decided today that

Lady Rhonia's claim and petition to sit in the house of lords had "not been made out."

Lady Rhonia's petition to sit in the house of lords was granted by the committee on privileges March 2, but when the decision was reported to the house late in March, it was referred back to the committee. The sentiment of the debate in the house of lords over the reference back to the committee apparently was against the admission of women.

BUSINESS REVIVAL DECLARED UNDER WAY

Washington, May 19.—The business revival foreseen by many government officials as due in the near future, already is under way, it was declared today at the white house, where reports were made at the steel manufacturers' conference last night of recent material increases in orders.

In connection with their discussion of President Harding's suggestion that the 12-hour day be abolished in the steel industry, several of the manufacturers commented on the shortage of unskilled labor which was already apparent and which, it was predicted, might become a matter of moment if the upward swing of the trade pendulum continued through the next ninety days.

The unemployed problem in several large cities apparently had been temporarily solved, Mr. Harding was told, and industry continued on the upswing. Agriculture also was reported on the road toward rehabilitation. The most serious complaint which now persists from the agricultural classes was said to be from stock raisers who have experienced difficulty in obtaining adequate financing.

President Harding was said to believe that a wholesome revival in business and industry was definitely under way and would continue unless some "cross currents" were struck.

Atlanta Gets $2,875,000 Check

R. W. Courts, Jr., of the Atlanta National bank, presenting City Comptroller B. Graham West a check for $2,875,000.

"now is the worst time in the history of Atlanta to raise taxes." He stated that the city should go slow about imposing any more burden of taxation on the people, and said that when the front foot basis is adopted the rate of assessment should be lowered.

Assessor A. C. Burton suggested that the central and semi-central property be assessed this year on a frontage basis and later extend the plan. Mr. Hancock objected, saying that the city "ought not to make the fish of one and fowl of the other."

Assessor John Malone supported his view and explained that partial application of the plan would be an injustice and discrimination.

Opposes Tax Increase. Edward M. Inman, who has large holdings of real estate in the city, appeared before the committee and urged against an increase of taxes. He said the property owners would pass the taxes on to tenants in increased rent and the tenants would turn pass the burden, until the taxes would ultimately come out of the people's pockets, whether they have property or not.

"We're paying all the taxes to this city we ought to," he continued, and told the committee a great saving of money could be accomplished by a different method of running some of the municipal departments.

"There's a department in city hall in which $100,000 a year could be saved," he said.

A committee member asked him to name it and he replied that it was the construction department.

The committee, after agreeing on a change in the plan of assessment, took no action on a measure by Alderman Harry Goodhart, introduced at the last council meeting and referred to the committee, requesting that Councilman Inman be authorized to raise any assessments this year.

Members of the committee present, besides Mr. Watkins, were Alderman L. N. Rogers, chairman; Councilman W. A. Sims, Councilman J. A. Couch and Councilman J. C. Murphy.

lania auditorium. The meeting, which Mr. Felder said was attended by about 5,000 people was held, according to his letter, both as a celebration of the passage of the law and as a "farewell" to the city.

The letter also quoted former state officials and bench and bar business men, who he said in letters given when Mr. Felder said farewell, with regret his departure from the city and spoke of him as a citizen who had helped Atlanta and Georgia.

Refutes Indictment. Commenting on the charge that he had been indicted in South Carolina, Mr. Felder said that "either one of the senators from South Carolina will verify the statement that I never was indicted in that state."

Mr. Felder said further he had worked in Washington for the 18th amendment, having spent more than a year in this city in behalf of the constitutional change. As for his record as a patriot, Mr. Felder declared he had asked and had been promised by the governor of Georgia a commission as colonel of the Third Georgia regiment to overseas with Colonel Roosevelt, if the latter was permitted to take a division overseas. Colonel Roosevelt, he said, had agreed to permit him to command the unit.

GENOA CROP FINE, DECLARES GEORGE

ence and the way it debated the Russian," said Lloyd George. "The discussions in themselves have demonstrated the value of the international conference. Here is a question which has created many political crises in different countries, which has provoked wars and revolutions in two continents, and that in this conference, in an atmosphere of calm and courteous investigation, what better justification could you have for conferences than that? All you have got to do in order to know how valuable conferences are is to consider the contrast between the ton of deliberations."

"You might have imagined from some of these that we had come here not to promote general peace, but to organize a general armageddon, and if our discussions had been continued in that spirit most of us would have passed from the Palazzo Reale to the Campo Santo. But it was discussion in an atmosphere of calm and quiet."

"For the first time Europe has faced that difficulty and did not shrink it. Half your troubles vanish the moment you face them and the other half disappear if you continue to face them. That is what we have decided to do. We have decided to continue to face this problem in order to struggle through, and that is the most courageous decision taken by this conference."

"We have a month for reflection on the difficulties we have had in this conference before we resume those discussions. I sincerely hope that month will be utilized with a view to discovering and suggesting a solution for those difficulties."

On Russia Memorandum. "I should like to say one word in that respect upon the Russian memorandum."

"I do not know what the effect of the memorandum in Russia, but I know the effect outside Russia was disastrous. It produced reaction against the spirit of settlement and it was the last word to be uttered by the Russian government. I should really despair of accomplishing much at The Hague. I am referring to the 11th day of May memorandum."

"Europe and the world need the produce which Russia can contribute, and Russia needs the accumulated wealth and skill which the world can place at its command. Russia cannot recover for a generation without that help."

"Europe is more and more filling up the gaps left by Russia needs more and more of the help which the world can give, and is anxious to give. Either from pride or prejudice we have not in the course of the war referred to this fact. Even at this moment there are millions of people in Russia, standing on the brink of famine and pestilence, who may perish without help. If Russia needs help she can get it. But will this Russian delegation allow me in a friendly spirit to say one word?"

Friendly Warning. "If Russia is to get help, Russia must not outrage the sentiments, if they like them call them prejudices, of the world. There is real sympathy for her condition."

"But those prejudices are very deep-rooted; they are rooted in the soil of the world; they are inherited from ages, and you cannot tear them out. When you are writing a letter asking for more credits, let me give one word of advice to anybody who does it. Let him not in that letter enter into an eloquent exposition of the doctrines of repudiation of war debts. It doesn't help you to get credits. It may be sound, very sound, but it isn't diplomatic."

"Europe is anxious to help. Europe can help; Europe will help, but Russia must in her dealings with her accept the code of honor which is an inheritance, which has come to us from centuries of generations of hard working, honest people and which has struck deep into the soil of the world. Not even the Russian tornado has split one fiber of it, and it is not one of these prejudices upon which our system depends, and, as a friend of Russian peace, as a friend of co-operation with Russia, as one who is in favor of going to the rescue of those great and gallant and brave people, I improve the Russian delegation when they come to The Hague not to go out of their way to trample upon those sentiments which are deeply rooted in the very life of Europe."

Life Line Still There. "At Cannes we threw out the life line and we have not yet drawn it in, as though we might. Neither has it snapped; neither has it been let go. It is still there. We would like to draw all the distresses, all the hunger, all the suffering in the east of Europe back to life, with all the health that the accumulated energy and skill of other lands can give them."

"We have faced the prospect of peace. It is a provisional one. Is it for months? Ah, no; it is more than that. We have decided upon a peace amongst warring nations and once you establish it nations are not going to back on it."

"We have decided to give peace a trial upon our heart-throats and when she has been there for several months we will not turn her out again. The ships of thirty-one-foot draft are now passing through the Suez canal. Heretofore it has been limited to thirty feet."

Bill Would Place Georgia Colleges Under One Board

A tentative agreement was reached Friday by the joint regency committee from both houses of the legislature who met in Atlanta to discuss the framing of a bill which would place the governing power of the state educational institutions under one source instead of under several separate boards of trustees.

Owing to absence of three members of the committee, the recommendations agreed upon are subject to change before being submitted to the legislature. It was announced by Howell Cone, of Statesboro, chairman of the committee.

A general board of seven members elected from the state at large to have complete supervision over all institutions of higher education owned by the state will be recommended to the legislature at the next session. The governor will appoint the members of this board with approval of the senate. The governing board will select trustees of the various institutions, who will administer to the needs of their respective institutions.

When the bill is submitted to the legislature the committee will recommend that support of the higher institutions be established by appropriating a certain per cent of the state revenues to be apportioned by the general board to the various institutions according to their needs, Mr. Cone stated.

DISABLED STEAMER RADIOS FOR HELI

Key West, Fla., May 19.—The American steamer Janelow, New Orleans to Savannah, reported by radio to the naval station here today that her turbine was disabled and could not be repaired at sea. The vessel was in position at 20 miles east of Alligator reef and drifting three miles an hour with the tide. The coast guard cutter Tallapoosa left here immediately to assist the Janelow and the wrecking tug Willet steamed a short time later to take the disabled vessel in tow. Alligator reef is about three quarters of the way between Key West and the Florida mainland.

HOOVER TO CONFER WITH LUMBER MEN

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.
Constitution Bureau.
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, May 19.—(By Constitution Leased Wire).—Secretary of Commerce, Hoover will hold conferences throughout next week with representatives of the various regional associations, composing the National Lumber Manufacturers' association and of lumber retailers, wholesalers, architects, building engineers, railways and the various wood consuming and woodworking industries. The National Hardwood Lumber association will also be represented.

The purpose of the conferences are to consider proposals of the lumber manufacturers for the standardization of lumber grades, the designation and identification, marking of all lumber products, and other trade reforms looking to far-reaching economies and simplification of manufacture and trade. The lumber manufacturers' committee is made up of John W. Blodgett, president of the National Lumber Manufacturers' association, and representatives of the regional associations. The representatives of the Southern Pine association follow:

Harry L. Kendall, Houston, Texas; M. B. Nelson, Kansas City, Mo.; W. T. Murray, Roanoke, Va.; Thomas Hamilton, Live Oak, Fla.; A. Triebel, Crosscut, Ark.; J. L. Kaul, Birmingham, Ala.

The Georgia-Florida Sawmill association will be represented by J. Ray Arnold, Groveland, Fla.

The North Carolina Pine association representatives follow: Charles Hill, New York; Thomas O'Brien, Mt. Olive, N. C.; J. Ross McNeal, Norfolk, Va.

The two basic things the lumber industry is now seeking to realize in this connection are the simplified standardization of lumber grades and sizes and the grade marking of every piece of lumber with the grade mark of the manufacturer. In this way, great economies of manufacture, storage, capital, etc., are contemplated, as well as a considerable gain in commercial confidence between buyer and seller, and the elimination of much friction and misunderstanding.

FIRST ENLISTMENTS IN NAVAL SERVICE WILL BE RESUMED

Lieutenant Commander A. I. Haas, commanding the local navy recruiting station, has received notification from the navy department that first enlistments will be resumed immediately. All enlistments will be for a period of four years and with a minimum age of 18. First enlistments will be made in the rate of apprentice seamen and recruits will be transferred to the naval operating base at Hampton Roads, Va., for a course of instruction prior to transfer to the fleet.

Ex-members of the army and marine corps, discharged with creditable record, will be enlisted as seamen second-class unless qualified for one of the higher ratings in the artificer or aviation branches and will be transferred to a receiving ship for further training to the fleet or aviation bases. Ex-members of the navy or naval reserve force eligible for re-enlistment who have been out of the service more than four months and less than one year may be re-enlisted in the rating in which discharged.

salaries for city officials and declared that this is only one phase of the present city government's inefficiency.

Salary Distribution.
The councilmen read a list of salaries paid various city officials, and called attention to alleged injustices in the salary distribution. He pointed out that the chief of police receives $3,300 per year, while the fire chief is paid $4,000 annually. He said that positions of equal responsibility should carry equal compensation.

Mr. Watkins described his charter as a scientific business plan which has met with success wherever tried. He said that to secure more efficient government it will be necessary to change the charter.

Practically every city in the United States which has made radical changes in its system of government within the past 10 or 15 years is now operating under charters similar to the Watkins plan, he said.

The speaker urged his hearers to exercise their privilege of voting on May 30, and told them that unless they vote they will have no right to "cuss" their city government.

Old Charter Forces Active.

Leaders of the old charter forces were not idle Friday, but they were not ready with any definite announcement of their plans, except to say they are organizing to win decisively.

Judge George Hillier, principal author of the existing charter, and leader in the first campaign, will remain at the head in the second battle.

Judge Charles Whiteford Smith, formerly of the court of appeals; Attorney John S. McClelland and Mr. J. C. White will be vice chairmen.

Headquarters will be maintained in the Piedmont hotel.

Next Tuesday night a Watkins mass-meeting will be held at the Central Congregationalist church, at which Councilman Watkins will be the principal speaker.

Watkins Charter.

Members of the "Wake-Up-Daddy" club who met in the seventh ward Friday night are C. W. Johnson, Joseph Leppert, R. S. Lawrence, A. J. Stewart, T. B. Branch, N. A. Ferrant, C. F. Talbot, C. E. Broach, J. E. Whitman, James Smith, M. W. Savage, Murray Howard and Fred C. Rice.

REPORTS OF "WAR" ARE RIDICULED

tory officers have said they would not bring any friendly suit.

The city attorney, in an opinion filed with the mayor, declared that the title of the property is not in the military organization. The matter rests in the statute quo in which it has rocked along for decades.

The city has supervised the grounds for years; schools and city ball teams and other organizations have used the grounds as playgrounds, as many as six baseball games being played at one time on the tract. Recently public comfort stations were put up on the grounds by the health department of the city for the convenience of the twelve to fifteen thousand persons attending the games every afternoon.

Ask Removal.

Colonel Travis advised the city authorities that the military officers for whom he is acting desired these stations removed, and the health department replied in friendly manner. No drastic action has been taken in the face of the case and an amicable settlement of differences is confidently expected.

It is certainly not likely, despite all the "paper talk," that national guardsmen of the field artillery regiment here and policemen of the city of Savannah will come to an actual clash over a matter which has been moot for many years and has been but recently periodically revived, for what reason nobody appears to understand.

Governor Hardwick Acts.

Governor Hardwick Friday directed Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash, commander of the state military department, to inform Colonel R. J. Travis, commander of the Savannah guardsmen of the field artillery regiment, that no state troops can be called out except by order of the governor.

Governor Hardwick was informed by telegram early Friday morning from Mayor Murray Stewart, of Savannah, that Colonel Travis has served notice on the mayor that unless certain comfort stations erected by the city in one of the principal park grounds of the city are removed by the city on or before May 20, he will call out to tear them down. Both the city and the regiment claim the park.

He said, in a letter to Governor Hardwick the Savannah mayor stated that he intended to protect the public comfort stations and prevent their removal by signing members of the police department to the park. Colonel Travis is said to have threatened to remove the stations in spite of the mayor or police.

she said, when she finally recovered her senses and made her way to a nearby farm house, from which medical assistance was summoned, and was taken to Grady hospital. She was near Flat Shoals road west of Decatur when she regained consciousness.

The victim of the alleged assault is badly battered and bruised, and one eye is discolored. She was reticent about the assault and refused to discuss it with reporters.

The house at which the injured girl sought assistance is occupied by Gus Wright, brother of Captain R. J. Wright, of the police department.

City Detective B. P. Gillespie and J. J. Cowan are working on the case and are attempting to locate the jewelry alleged to have been stolen from Miss Dubois. Other clues as to the identity of the alleged assailant are also being sought.

rear fender of an automobile driven by G. J. Adams, of 330 Love street.

Call Officers N. P. Parker and J. G. Bowdon, who investigated the accident, made a case of reckless driving against Adams, who was held under $300 bond. The automobile is said to belong to C. Holmes, who lives at the corner of Love and Woodson streets.

Young Negro Killed.

John Jackson, 6-year-old negro boy, of 25 Julian street, was fatally injured near the corner of Bellwood avenue and Julian street early at night, when he was struck by the automobile of Mrs. J. H. Gray, of 9 Evelyn place, Grove Park. He was rushed to Grady hospital, where he died soon after the accident.

Mrs. Gray, who was placed under arrest and taken to the police station, told police authorities that the boy suddenly ran out into the streets in front of her car while she was driving out Bellwood avenue.

Bond was assessed at $1,500, which was made.

Mrs. Charles Ellis, of 103 Formwalt street, was severely injured and Mrs. B. Caruthers, of 40 Copper street, was slightly hurt when Mrs. Ellis' automobile, in which they were riding, collided with the police department's hall street near Cooper street Friday night.

Mrs. Caruthers stated that they were turning the car into Mrs. Ellis' garage when the street car struck the rear of the automobile. The car was badly damaged by the collision. Motorman E. W. Ross was in charge. Officer William Holland has been assigned to investigate the case.

Policeman Loses Day.

Haste in reaching the police station Thursday morning in order to answer "here" to roll call, meant waste of an entire day for Patrolman J. S. Thornburg.

Noticing that he was a bit late, Thornburg hailed a friend who was passing in an automobile and asked for a lift to the police station.

Standing on the running board, the auto struck a bump near Edgewood avenue and Butler street, and the next thing was a bump on the head.

Friday morning, recovered from his severe jolting, Patrolman Thornburg left home in plenty of time to join the day watch at the station at 8 o'clock.

Myo Still Hurt.
In addition to the list of auto accidents, little Myo Still, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. R. King, who live in a tent at 193 Tazewell street, was seriously injured Friday morning when she was struck by an accidental discharge of her father's shotgun in the hands of her small brother, Milo.

According to information gained by the police, the boy was playing with the gun on a cot in front of the tent when the weapon was accidentally discharged, a portion of the load striking the little girl in the left temple and ranging forward toward the eye.

It is feared she may lose the entire sight of the left eye.

ROBERT M. COOK IN FOREST TOUR

has supervised the legal end of several large land purchases.

In the Cherokee forest section in Georgia, large portions of the land to be set aside by the government has not yet been purchased. In the Nantahala reservation nearly all the land has been bought and the acquired by the government. An ample amount of land for recreational park purposes, however, is now owned in the north Georgia region, according to official maps in the office of Mr. Cook.

Greeley Praises Plan.

Another development in the plan of The Constitution to conduct the government party through the Georgia forests and mountains, came Friday, when Colonel William B. Greeley, chief forester of the United States, wrote a letter to the Georgia forestry commission approving the work being done by Georgians in behalf of the forests.

"The increasing public interest in forests, which is being shown in Georgia," Colonel Greeley wrote, "is most hopeful promise that your state will soon take its place with those who have made definite provision for preserving the timber supply."

"What Georgia does with its valuable forest resources, though of first concern to its own citizens," continued Colonel Greeley, "is also of decided importance outside the state. Our country is drawing on its forests four times as fast as they grow. It has seen one lumber region after another depleted and now has half its remaining original supply in the three Pacific states; yet the bulk of our lumber cut is consumed east of the Mississippi."

Colonel Greeley, in his letter, emphasized strongly the importance to the nation of the forest resources of the south.

"No other region produces such a variety of forest products capable of supplying almost every need of American forestry," he stated, "but Georgia's great forest industries are on the wane. In the past ten years the lumber cut has fallen off a full third. Within the last 20 years the naval stores products have decreased three-fourths. The area of virgin timber has also been reduced to less than 1,000,000 acres, or one-twentieth of the original forest wealth of the state. Five million acres of forest lands have been swept by fire within the last decade."

That Georgia is proceeding along right lines, according to Colonel Greeley, is shown by the following statement from his letter:

"Already your state has taken the initial step necessary in my judgment to the adoption of a comprehensive forest policy when it established last year a state board of forestry to investigate the forest situation and needs of the state and to advise the legislature and people what they should do in the public interest."

The next step is to give this board broader power. The most important immediate need is to stop forest fires. This is the most practical means for keeping forest lands productive after lumbering and of putting acres of cut-over lands now largely idle to work growing trees. An organized state system is indispensable to bringing this about, and a great deal of educational work is also necessary to establish an active public sentiment for keeping fires out of the woods."

The convention was memorialized by C. E. Madry, of Raleigh, N. C., in behalf of the State Secretaries' association, to consider appointing a country church commission with Dr. R. J. Van Ness, of Nashville, as chairman. The commission would study the problem of country churches and report to next year's convention. The statement was made that the Sunday school board already is doing this work, and the memorial was referred to the committee on resolutions. The convention adopted a recommendation of the committee on resolutions that the country church problems be cared for by the Sunday school board and enlisted department of the home mission board instead of by formation of a new commission.

At the afternoon session of the convention, which was devoted largely to talks of missionaries in the home field, Dr. R. J. Bateman, of Asheville, N. C., told of his work among tubercular ex-service men in government hospitals around Asheville.

Dr. Bateman declared medical officers estimated from 75 to 90 per cent of gassed tubercular patients in the hospitals will die and that 15,000 returned soldiers now in civilian life will enter tubercular hospitals throughout the country annually during the next five years.

WEAVER'S REPORT ADOPTED BY CONVENTION

BY CHARLES S. HENDERSON.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 19.—(Special).—Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president of Mercer University, chairman of a committee on new theological seminary, made the report on behalf of the committee this afternoon to the Southern Baptist convention.

Among the prominent Georgians who were on the platform when Dr. Weaver read his report were William D. Upshaw, congressman of Atlanta district; Clifford Walker, ex-attorney-general of Georgia; W. W. Gaines, president of board of education of Atlanta; Dr. Arch C. Gree, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist convention; Dr. Charles W. Daniels, pastor First Baptist church, Atlanta; Dr. William Russell Owen, pastor of the First Baptist church, Macon; F. Rogers Miller, secretary of the chamber of commerce, Macon; Lonnie D. Newton, editor of the Christian Index, Atlanta; Dr. F. C. McConnell and others.

The messengers though willing under the humidity of Florida premature summer's heat, listened with unusual interest to the report of Dr. Weaver as he outlined the plan proposed by his committee for a southern university that would cope with the needs of our educational demands.

Principal Points.

The principal recommendations made by the committee which Dr. Weaver represented are as follows:

1. That the matter of negotiating for regaining control of the Baptist of Georgia University, Washington, D. C., formerly Columbia University, be referred to the education board of Birmingham, but that no final action binding the convention in any way shall be taken until the convention has acted.

2. That no proposal to establish one or more southern universities be referred to a committee of one from each state for further study and report one year hence.

3. That the matter of establishing another theological seminary be referred to a committee of one representative from each state for consideration for one year.

The committee is of the opinion that another seminary is needed, due to the increasing number of young men offering for the ministry and both men and women dedicating their lives to some special form of Christian service.

Offers Memorial.

Dr. C. W. Daniels, of Atlanta, offered a memorial from trustees of Mercer university, bearing the approval of the Baptist state convention of Georgia, in which it is asked that the theological department of Mercer university be made the nucleus of the new seminary, and that Mercer be designated as the southern university for the territory lying east of the Mississippi river.

The trustees of the Mercer university propose, if this be done, to transfer all the assets of Mercer university, which will be $2,500,000 upon the conclusion of the $75,000,000 campaign, to the Southern Baptist convention, on the condition that the convention raise the sum of $2,500,000 for the larger equipment and endowment of the new seminary and university. The Baptists of Georgia agree to supplement this sum with another $2,500,000 within a definite period of time, which would give the new institution total assets of $7,500,000.

The subject was discussed by Dr. A. C. Cree, who called attention to what Georgia Baptists proposed to give to the Southern Baptist convention, and by F. Rogers Miller, secretary of the Macon Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Miller told of the attitude of the city of Macon toward the new seminary and proposed university which is to be built out of Mercer as a nucleus.

Dr. Henry W. Battle, of Virginia, said he was proud of Mercer, and predicted that the memorial offered by the Georgia Baptist convention would prove to be Mercer's greatest step.

McConnell Speaks.

The next speaker was Dr. F. C. McConnell, of Atlanta, who said that he was not surprised that southern Baptists should want to build such an institution, but the wonder to him was that Georgia Baptists should make such a startling offer as the memorial provides for.

After some parliamentary skirmishing on the part of Dr. John G. Harrison, Dr. E. J. Forester and others, the whole paper was adopted; so the matter will be settled finally at the next convention.

SCHOOL HEADS OPEN WAR ON "SHIFTERS"

School boy and school girl membership in the "shifter" society is a bad which officials and faculty heads were taking measures Friday to curb in the Atlanta public schools before it spreads further.

Miss Jessie Muse, principal of Girls' High school, issued an edict forbidding students from wearing shifter emblems, which are nothing but ordinary paper clips.

"We do not believe this movement is anything serious," Miss Muse said, "but we have taken steps to stamp it out, nevertheless. In all classes to-day the teachers warned our girls about wearing the emblems. It seems to be a very foolish organization and should not be allowed to go unnoticed."

"Only a few of our girls have worn the shifter emblem and I do not anticipate any more will do so."

H. C. Smith, principal of Boys' High school, said he had seen a few students of his school wearing the emblem, but no action had been considered necessary at the school.

Other principals said they had not noticed the fad. W. A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, said he thought it would be a natural death by the time the schools open for a new term.

The "shifter" society has signs and words of salutation and recognition, grips and passwords, but any member is supposed to have the right to initiate another, demanding some treat as a fee.

INVITATIONS ISSUED FOR DAIRY CONGRESS

Washington, May 19.—The state department has just issued invitations to 150 nations, colonies and commonwealths to send representatives to the world's dairy congress, to be held in a leading American city, yet to be selected, in October, 1923.

"While this congress will not be conducted under the patronage of the government of the United States," the department announced, "Great interest is taken in the congress by the United States department of agriculture, which is co-operating with the committee of management and the congress of the United States has requested and authorized the president to extend invitations to foreign governments to participate in delegates therein."

This will be the first congress of its kind in the United States, it was said, and will be carried out through the World's Dairy Congress association. The idea was first conceived in 1919.

Prohi Sentiment Grows in Europe, Declares Herod

There is a real prohibition sentiment in Europe and it is steadily growing in strength, according to an address made Thursday night in the pine room of the Ansley hotel by Dr. Robert Herod, of Louanne, Switzerland, who is head of the permanent committee for prohibition in Europe, who left Atlanta Friday morning to complete his southern tour. The speaker was the guest at a dinner given by Dr. Charles O. Jones, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, and W. S. Witham, prominent banker.

Dr. Herod is in the United States studying the situation for use in his work in Europe. He told of the methods that are being employed there to aid the movement for placing a ban on liquor, and showed that real progress is being made.

The only countries where there is little sympathy for the cause are the wine producing nations—France, Spain, Italy and Portugal. He said that these nations have unofficially banded themselves to advance the work of the anti-prohibition organizations; that these organizations are flooding Europe with false statements concerning the effects of prohibition in America, and that because of the ignorance of Europeans this publicity has hurt the work of the committee of which he is the head.

Dr. Herod's committee is gathering facts of all kinds and using them in pamphlets, bulletins and other kinds of reading matter that are being circulated. He said that the committee has the fact that within the last ten months he had delivered prohibition lectures in more than two hundred countries.

A number of prominent citizens were guests, and each was called upon to give his view of the effects of prohibition in America, and that because of the law. The consensus of opinion was that there is less drinking among the masses than previous to the enactment of the amendment, and that conditions as a whole are vastly improved. Stress, however, was laid on the fact that public opinion in favor of the right of temperance is the prohibition laws should be built up.

Pastor Is Obtained By Lutheran Church Of Missouri Synod

Announcement to the effect that the Rev. Martin F. Kuezele, of Conover, N. C., had accepted the call extended to him by the local Grace Lutheran congregation was made at a recent meeting of that church, which was presided over by the Rev. H. Reuter, of Birmingham, Ala.

The Grace Lutheran church, of Atlanta, is probably the youngest congregation in the city, its organization dating back only to March 23, 1922. The first step toward founding this church was taken in November, 1921, when Pastor H. Reuter, following instruction from the board of missions of the southern district of the Missouri Synod spent several days in Atlanta with the view of exploring the city for the purpose of ascertaining the possibilities of organizing a congregation of Lutherans without a church home.

Upon learning that the outlook and possibilities for establishing a Missouri Synod Lutheran congregation in Atlanta were favorable the board of missions without delay decided to call a permanent pastor for this field, its choice being the Rev. Martin F. Kuezele, who is planning to take charge of his new field in June. Pastor Kuezele is a graduate of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., and has been in the ministry about nine years. The present officers of the Grace Lutheran church are: R. C. Lieb, chairman; O. C. Pfeiffer, secretary; Luther Ohlbeck, financial secretary; H. E. Vogel, treasurer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET WILL BE HELD TODAY

Officials of the Sunday school athletic meet, which is to be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Piedmont park, held a dinner conference at the central Y. M. C. A. and completed plans for smooth and efficient handling of the various events on the program.

The event will draw the largest number of entries in the history of Atlanta mass athletics, it is said. Thirty Sunday schools will be fully represented.

Stars of Tech, Oglethorpe and Emory will take part, but in view of the fact that this is a handicap meet, officials declare that every man will have an equal chance to win.

Boy Scouts will be very much in evidence and will do everything in their power to make the field day a big success. They will be under the leadership of Field Marshall W. E. Hutchison.

Officials will be on hand at 1:30 o'clock promptly, and the events will start at 2 o'clock sharp.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH WILL MEET SUNDAY

The Free School of Health will hold its regular meeting Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the town room of the chamber of commerce. There will be community singing from 3 o'clock until 3:30, led by J. E. McKee and a beautiful musical program including vocal and instrumental selections by the school's talented musicians. Robert Bryan Harrison will be the speaker, using for his subject: "What I Saw and Heard in Washington." He will also tell about the new movement establishing "Mothers' Rest-Awhile" Home.

A full attendance is desired, as there will be a large distribution of free health literature and business of much importance to transact.

Prophet Predicts War.

T. T. Thompson, a self-styled prophet, will preach at Ashby and Simpson streets Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. He has announced that he has important revelations to make concerning a war which threatens this country.

Pair of Garters All Young Lady Left for Debts

A pair of yellow silk garters, now in possession of the clerk of the municipal court, constituted all the property that Miss Elsie Marie Ferguson, late of Atlanta, now of Chicago, left in this city, but C. B. Merrett, of Atlanta, does not think this is sufficient to satisfy his claim of $25 on a promissory note he has held since last December.

Merrett garnished Attorney J. F. Echols, who represented the woman at one time, and the latter turned over to the court the garters, which he explained were left on his desk, when Miss Ferguson left his office hurriedly on her last visit there.

According to Attorney T. Y. Lewis, counsel for the Marietta man, whose name he refused to disclose, Miss Ferguson started to Marietta, one night and her automobile was wrecked.

A Marietta man who was passing by in his car took her to her destination. Miss Ferguson came back to Atlanta and then notified the good Samaritan that she was going to sue him for damaging her car. The Marietta man, after he found that she had employed a lawyer, told her he would send her attorney a check for $80, and that she could get her money after the lawyer had deducted his fees. Attorney Lewis said:

"She went to Echols' once to get her money, but in the meantime the Marietta man had telephoned Atlanta banks not to pay the check, claiming he had decided he wouldn't be mulcted in any such manner."

"When Echols called up the banks to see if the check would be cashed, he was told it would not be and then informed his client to that effect. Miss Ferguson immediately jumped to her feet, declaring she already had transportation back to Chicago, and, withdrawing in great haste, left a pair of yellow silk garters, which she had just purchased, on Echols' desk."

Attorney Echols never saw her again, and when Merrett heard that Echols held $80 belonging to Miss Ferguson he garnished the attorney, it was stated.

In answer Echols said:

"Garnishee says that he has been paid to an expense of 3 cents in answering this garnishment and prays that said sum may be attached as cost in said case."

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

The Spoilers of the Valley

BY ROBERT WATSON

Next Week, "Flames of the Blue Ridge"
By Ethel and James Dorrance

Phil went back to his desk and opened up the day's mail. In it there was a letter from Eileen, full of love, but overladen with sorrow, for it contained the disquieting news that her father had been taken suddenly ill. The doctors at Victoria had recommended a speedy return to the valley, and Eileen and her father were taking that advice and following by the next day's train. Phil drove down to meet them on arrival, and he was terribly shocked to see the change that had come over the old rancher and politician.

Poor little Eileen was broken-hearted. Phil tried hard to make light of her father's situation, but she remained inconsolable. "It isn't any good, boy!" she remarked sadly, as they sat together. "Everything he has is held as security by the bank. There is nothing left for him to do but to assign everything."

Phil and Jim were routed out of bed the next night by Howden, who was now chief of police. At his request they saddled their horses and immediately started off with him.

"Gentle thieves!" asked Jim. "Worse'n that!" The Commercial bank's been broken into, the safe blown up and every blamed bill in the institution pinched. There is hardly a policeman in town—only me, Downie and McConachie. We go up along the Kelowna road. Downie has a bunch and is off up the B. X. route. McConachie got three with him on to the Landing. Thompson, the government agent, is away with Morrison on the Coldcreek road."

They galloped straight ahead to where the Kelowna road ran parallel with the lake three hundred feet above the water. The night was dark, but the gray of dawn was slowly creeping. Like a writhing snake, the road turned and twisted round the hills, which almost precipitated into the dark waters below. The riders were now going Indian file owing to the darkness and the narrowness of the path. Phil, who was ahead, turned the first bend, and he was off like a whirlwind.

Halfway between where they were and the next turn, a lone horseman was standing, intent on adjusting the stirrups and heavy saddlebags on his steaming horse. Gathering for a dash, they sprang around the turn with a yell. The man by the horse looked up in astonishment. Evidently he had not been anticipating pursuit from that quarter. With an astounding agility for a man of his apparent bulk, he sprang clear from the ground into the saddle of his great horse, and he was off like a whirlwind.

They covered a mile in a breath-breaking pace and by that time Phil was three hundred yards in front of Jim and Howden, with the hunted man two hundred yards further ahead still. The light was creeping up every minute. Phil looked behind him and fancied he saw other riders tailing in behind Jim and Howden, which was true, for the two had been joined by McConachie and one other.

Through the part gloom, Phil noticed that the fugitive was masked and heavily bearded. Foot by foot Phil gained, until a bare fifty yards divided them. The horseman ahead rounded another bend in the road. Phil dashed along in hot chase. He slowed up a bit, for the turning of the road was a trap. From the shadow of one of the great rocks, the horseman in waiting jumped out on him. Phil's mare plunged its fore feet into the soft earth, then reared in terror. The robber pulled a gun and fired. The shot nicked a tiny piece from Phil's ear as it sang past. The man shot again, this time without any apparent effect. He wheeled round, spurred his horse and dashed off once more along the narrow path.

Phil shook his reins. His mare sprang forward eagerly and held her own for a little. But suddenly she began to sway in her stride, then she stumbled, almost throwing her rider. Phil pulled her in and jumped to the ground, just in time for she collapsed in a quivering heap, with blood oozing from a tiny hole in her chest and from her foaming mouth and distended nostrils. In his chagrin, Phil raised his fist and shook it at the retreating horseman as he disappeared around the next bend.

There was a shout and the sound of a crash. The fugitive's horse reared at the sharp angle of the path, rearing high on its hind legs, with its rider clinging precariously to its perpendicular body as he struggled frantically with the stirrups as if trying to kick free. The animal backed wildly against the frail wooden rail on the outside—erected there for the safety of pedestrians in the dark. The fence gave way like matchwood, the rearing figure of the horse with its rider balanced on the edge for a moment, then slowly toppled backward amid a rush of loose, falling debris, sheer two hundred feet to the rocky shore of the lake below.

Phil left his gun behind and ran forward to the scene of the accident. Jim Langford, Howden, McConachie and Morrison of the O. K. company came racing along behind, reaching the place simultaneously with him. Immediately on the other side of the cut-away, an old Chinaman was lying nursing a damaged and bloody head, and about him was littered with the wreckage of his broken wagon and scattered vegetables.

They peered over the edge of the precipice. "Dead, I guess, from the looks of that tangle down there," said Jim.

"Who is going down to bring him up?" asked McConachie. "I'll go," said Phil. "No—better let Phil go," he is not quite so heavy as you are."

Ropes were taken from the saddles and joined together. Phil was lowered slowly over the side and down. He reached the bottom in safety, but was unable to do anything single-handed, for the head horse was lying on top of the dead rider. "Better come down, Jim," he shouted up. "It is more than a one-man job."

He sent up his rope, and soon Jim was down beside him. Together they rolled the horse off the dead man. Every bone in the body of the bank robber was broken with the weight of the horse falling on top. But his masked and bearded face appeared to be unharmed. Phil slipped and he moved the mask. As he did so, his face turned as pale as his breath began to come in gulps. Quickly and nervously he put his fingers through the man's black beard and tugged. The hair came away in his hands. He rose from the knees, passed his hand over his eyes and his brow, then staggered against the damp bank. "Great God, Jim! It's—it's Brencfield!" he gasped.

Phil recovered himself and quietly assisted Jim in adjusting the rope around the limp body. They did not shout their discovery to those above, but left the surprise of it to the arrival. But they had to wait some time and had to shout several times before the rope was lowered by the half-stuffed men above. Jim and Phil loosened the saddle-bags from the dead horse. These were stuffed with overlying with bills of all denominations; seemingly the entire theft from the Commercial bank. One after the other, and carrying a bag, Phil and Jim were pulled up on the roadway.

Brencfield's body was hoisted and swung across Howden's horse in front of the chief, and the man-hunters proceeded homeward at a canter.

CHAPTER XI.
A New Day.

Phil was busily engaged going over the day's mail early one afternoon, when his attention was drawn to an envelope addressed to himself and bearing the government imprint. He opened it and read the contents slowly.

Mr. Philip Ralston,
Vernon, B. C.

Dear Sir: Among the papers left by the late Graham Brencfield, late Mayor of Vernon, was one addressed to the attorney general in which he made a statement to being the sole culprit in the assault on the bank official and in the robbery of the branch bank at Garbary several years ago. For this crime, you were tried by jury and sentenced to a term of five years imprisonment.

The government can accept no responsibility for the mistake of your incarceration on account of the fact that you could have cleared yourself at the time you chose to do so. I have much pleasure, however, in advising you that your conviction has been quashed from the criminal records of the province and from the books of Ukalla penitentiary.

J. GALLBRAITH SAMUELS,
Attorney General.

Phil was still in his chair with the letter in his hand, when Jim came in, with a grin on his face and his hat set jauntily over one side of his head. "Gee, Phil!—positively and absolutely, the most charming piece of femininity I have ever seen is in Vernon today. It was up at the station when the train came and she came off with her mother and dad. I guess they were."

"Strangers?" "Yes. They went to the Station hotel. But I tell you—He stopped. "Oh, well!—what's the good? Guess she's married, or engaged, or something like that. Just my rotten luck!" Phil handed over the letter he was holding. Jim read it, and his big, honest face beamed in delight. He pounced on Phil and wrung his hand. "Man—man! that's great, now! He owned up—the dirty sinner. But he waited till he was a dead one before he did it. But, say, Phil—honest! he was a dreamer, she was a positive vision."

Towards closing time, Phil was standing beside his car, when a tall young lady, fashionably attired crossed the road in front of him and stopped before one of the office windows. She stepped back a little, looked up at the sign over the doorway. "The Langford-Ralston Financial Corporation," and walked inside.

Phil turned around. Phil knew in a second that she must be the young lady of whom his partner had spoken. She smiled, and was about to address him when she stepped up. Her eyes grew wide and her face blanched. For almost a minute she stood staring at him, then she almost tottered to him. She put her hand on his sleeve, and her fingers ran loosely along his arm, as she still held his eyes with hers. Her voice came at last, broken and in the faintest of whispers: "Phil—oh, Phil! It is you! Do you know me? Sister Margery!" Her voice rose. She threw her arms around his neck and cried: "I've found you! Phil! Oh—I've found you!"

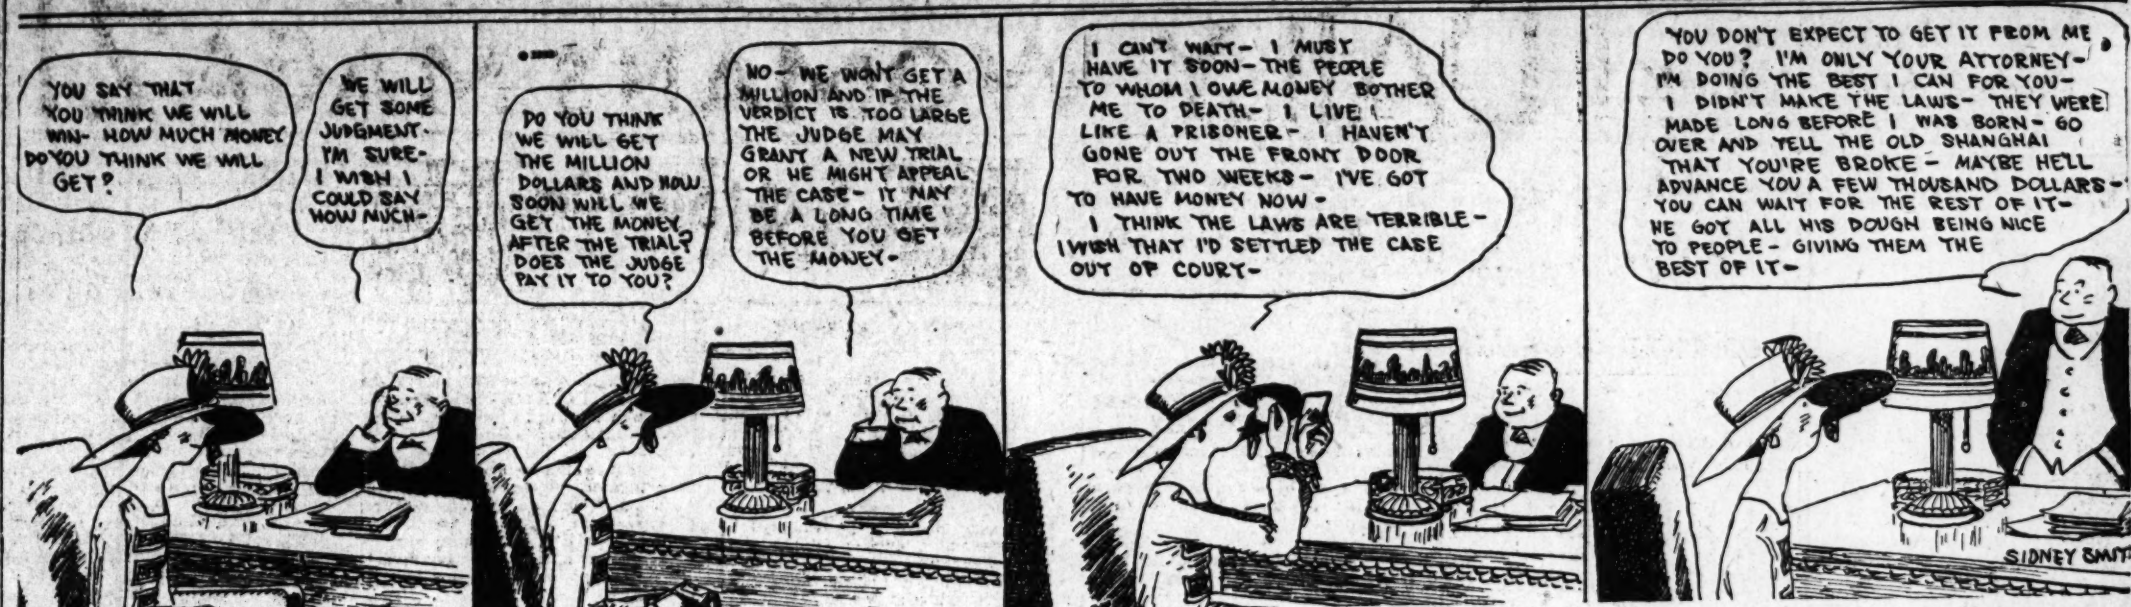

And Phil, with a heart too full to speak, and a mind too astonished to grasp the situation thoroughly, held her to him as tears ran down his cheeks. At last he led her into his own room.

She picked up the telephone and got to communication with her parents. "Oh, daddy!—come down the main street, to number 156. Come quick! Bring mother!"

Shortly afterwards a tall, gray-haired straight-backed gentleman came in, accompanied by a sweet-faced, motherly lady. The big, kindly-faced man ran to his boy and hugged him in his arms. He held him out for a long time, then he hugged him again. And there, in the little private room, Phil made his peace with the dear old lady he had wronged long ago in his boyish idea of chivalry to his own departed mother. He told them of all his wanderings, his hardships, his disappointments, his ambitions and his ultimate success. When he related how he had suffered five years in prison for Brencfield's father and mother had died in caring for him, in giving him a home and paying for his education—his old father's anger was almost at white heat.

"Paying, did you say, boy? By the Lord Harry—not a cent did they ever pay for you. When you would not have the money, I sent it to them regularly for your upkeep; and much more besides, for they always had something to tell me of what you needed extra. I doubled the allowance when they sent you to college. I planned, not once but a hundred times, to go to Campbelltown in search of you. But I couldn't get away from my business and mother was too ill to travel. Last winter, however, I sold all my interests for cash, mother made a great recovery, and we came away for a double purpose. First, to find you;—we could, next, to see if we should like to make a home out here, for we had heard much about free from blight; there is our partnership proposition to you in black and white. Read it over carefully and give us your decision tomorrow afternoon."

John Royce Pederstone rose. "Thank you, gentlemen! I shall do so. I would give you my answer now, but I must be going to win."

"You have won," she answered. "The real victory is always in the decision, Phil."

The sound of a voice, sweet and mirthful; and another low, melodious, and charming in its enunciation, came up from below, breaking in on their conversation. Phil looked over the window-sill, then, smilingly he beckoned to Eileen. They both leaned over. Down there, on a summer-seat, in the arbor of trailing vines at the end of the veranda, close together and evidently day-dreaming, were Margery and Jim.

News of Society and Woman's Work

City Federation Addressed By Dr. Thornwell Jacobs

The scope of the work and interests of the Atlanta City Federation of Women's Clubs, with its contacts, not only with important local and state institutions and activities, but with national and even with international movements, was strikingly suggested in the annual address yesterday by Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, president of the federation, at the morning session of the annual meeting at the Capital City Club.

The responsibility of organized womanhood and their potentiality was further amplified by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, principal speaker at the federation luncheon, at which the principal civic organizations of men, as well as women, were represented.

"World Peace" was Dr. Jacobs' theme, and in a scholarly and interesting exposition in brief of world conditions of today—this after-war time, which he called a "period of readjustment"—he declared that the greatest and the only effective power for the establishment of brotherhood of nations, must be found in the women. It is the fundamental condition for peace, and women can and naturally should be its propagators. The brain of the world is in the women, but Versailles failed because the throbbing heart of the world was not represented. The things that make any nation strong are the things for which its womanhood are responsible.

America is now the dominant power of the world, and whatever her desire to keep out of entangling alliances with foreign powers, in any great struggle of the future, America must be the bulwark of the power of the white races.

The history of the world, said Dr. Jacobs, is that in the wars of nations, the final conquest is not through the muscles of men or great armaments, but in the character of the breeding of the race. The women of a race represent the future of the race, and spirit of peace, which is the spirit of kindness, it is the mission of women, to promote.

Civic Clubs.

The luncheon which Dr. Jacobs addressed, was the most active civic interests. At the speakers' table, at which Mrs. Thornton presided, there were, besides a group of leaders in the women's organized activities, Mayor James L. Key, Willis Sutton, superintendent of schools, and the following representatives of civic organizations: E. C. Rambo, chamber of commerce; Mel R. Wilkinson, President's club; Shepard Bryan, Citizens; Dudley Cowles, Kiwanis; Dr. E. C. Thrash, Independent Order of Odd Fellows; and the Atlanta Federation of Trades. Each made a one-minute talk on the community spirit of his organization, and each expressed desire for closer civic cooperation with the federated clubs.

Mrs. Thornton, in her introductory words, stated the federation of clubs as a "torchbearer, a pathfinder, and mentioned as outstanding movements given impetus during the past year by the city federation the preliminary work for the State Forestry association to be organized in June, and the propagation of educational work for the eradication of cancer, now a statewide movement.

Resolutions.

At the morning session of the federation, the report of the resolutions committee, Mrs. W. L. Percy, chairman, was accepted in full, these resolutions voicing the sentiment of the federated clubwomen on matters of universal civic import.

They were as follows:

Indorsement of the efforts of Atlanta's "efficient chief of police," James L. Heavers, to secure for the women's department at the city prison an extra matron, a fifth policeman, who will be supervisor and do follow-up work, and a third telephone operator," the resolution offered by Mrs. Joseph M. Moody, chairman of public welfare.

A resolution offered by Mrs. Charles J. Haden was as follows:

Be it Resolved, That we, as persons of the public schools and citizens of Atlanta, do not favor any proposal to bar, or disqualify teachers because of their religious faith, and we urge the utmost loyalty to both spirit and betterment of our federal constitution, which pledges full protection and right of conscience to all.

Milk Inspection.

A resolution offered by Mrs. Joseph N. Moody, chairman of public welfare, based on the importance of clean, nutritious milk for a part of the diet of children and adults, urged that city council appropriate sufficient funds to pay for a fifth inspector, that milk be graded according to bacterial count and butter fat contents; and that in cases of infraction of the city laws concerning the city milk supply that fines should be made heavy enough to act as a real deterrent from further infractions.

Safety First.

A resolution offered by Mrs. Albert Thornton deplored the great number of serious accidents at railroad crossings through the carelessness of drivers, and at the request of railroad officials granted the co-operation of the city federation with the railway officials in the use of "stop, look, listen" sentiment, and urged emphasis of this point by all clubs, P. T. A.'s and schools.

Georgia Products.

The resolution offered by Mrs. Norman Sharp was as follows:

The Georgia federation of the campaign now being pressed by the Georgia federation for the development of Georgia sources and the use by Georgians whenever possible of Georgia products and Georgia-made goods, and also for co-operation in "made-in-Georgia week," May 22-27.

Annual Reports.

Annual reports were made by the officers: Recording secretary, Mrs. H. G. Hastings; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Varden; treasurer, Mrs. Willis Hagani; auditor, Mrs. R. K. Rambo; president, Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, and other interesting features were the annual address of the president and the reports of the year's work by representatives of the one-hundred-and-four Atlanta clubs now federated.

Mrs. Thornton emphasized the initiative and co-operative work of the federation, the main purpose of which is stimulation, co-operation. She stated its original responsibility and its constant promotion of such movements as foster conservation, which the city federation, with the Atlanta chapter, American Society of Engineers, called seventeen years ago the first southern conference, and then took initial steps last summer which brought about the Georgia forestry committee.

She touched upon other movements started by city club which have begun and become state-wide, and called attention to the large number of members of the city federation who are now officers in national organizations: Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, director for Georgia, of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Alton Richardson, chairman of the division of citizenship training of the American Red Cross; Mrs. Howard H. McCall, vice president-general of Georgia, of the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Joseph Lamar, president of the national society of Colonial Dames; Mrs. John T. Toler, vice president of the national society of the Girls Overseas clubs; and Mrs. Frank Holland, vice president of the national good roads association.

Mrs. Thornton is herself president of the revision of the constitution and by-laws of the city federation was accepted. The committee is composed of Mrs. Howard H. McCall, chairman; Mrs. Charles Haden, Mrs. Alton Richardson, Miss Rosa Woodberry and Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, president ex-officio.

Mrs. Thornton mentioned her own representation of the city federation before federated clubs as far away as Arizona, California and even Paris, and the honors conferred upon her as conference in Washington and in other noteworthy gatherings.

Roll Call of Clubs.

The roll call of the federated clubs followed and the president or a representative from each responded with a three-minute report of her club's activities. These reports individually were oftentimes dramatic in their interest, and the sum total a stimulating revelation of the varied and substantial work of the organized womanhood of Atlanta. It ranged from the splendid report of the Council of Jewish Women with its considerable handling of funds, which an interesting detail was the recent adoption of the budget system in the handling of its finances and its manner of collecting funds, which precludes the necessity of giving benefit entertainments; to the report of the Rho-dodendron club, a group of girls whose main object is aid to Tallulah Falls Industrial school.

Next was the report of the Tallulah Falls Industrial school, which they had lost four members in fall by marriage which had crippled the club, but that they had revived sufficiently to undertake the clothing of an 8-year-old girl at Tallulah school and were raising the money for her scholarship.

Plea for Tallulah.

That Tallulah Falls school is "working with its back to the wall" was the statement of Mrs. Bolling Jones in urging that the clubs of the federation at once meet their pledges or increase them the adequate maintenance of this institution.

"The Tallulah school is our own child," said Mrs. Jones. "It is directly our responsibility, and its care our direct duty. The school must go forward or close up."

Memorial Tribute.

A beautiful memorial service was held by Mrs. Bolling Jones in tribute to members of the federation who have died during the year—Mediaman W. Thomas, Clark Howell, W. T. Newman, F. P. Helfner, Orme Campbell, George Pratt, James E. Hickey, Fairfax E. Montague, Hettie Gay, Carr Morehead and Miss Carrie Fiebleman.

The sympathy of the meeting was expressed for three members who are ill, Mrs. Arthur L. Harris, vice president; Mrs. Sam D. Jones and Mrs. Frank M. Inman, and the secretary was instructed to write them letters.

A vote of thanks was extended to Wilmer L. Moore, chairman of entertainment, and her committee, for the arrangement of the beautiful federation luncheon and the handsome decorations.

Girl Reserves To Entertain Their Mothers

The Japanese tea to be given by the Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserves of West End Park, in honor of their mothers, at the residence of Miss Ruth Matthews, 132 Westwood avenue, Saturday afternoon, from 5 to 7 o'clock, will be a delightful occasion. Miss Matthews is advisor of the West End Reserves.

The object of the tea is the desire of the girls to have their mothers know what they are doing as Y. W. C. A. girl reserves; what their reserve program is, and how it is being accomplished.

The lawn of the Matthews home will be decorated with Japanese lanterns and umbrellas. The reserves will wear Japanese kimonos. A fortune teller in her booth will tell fortunes by each person drawing a numbered stick from a box, looking in a Japanese book for a corresponding number and then reading her fortune. A Japanese pantomime will feature the program. Mary Ellen Parks will relate the story of the pantomime as it is acted by the cast, which includes Jeanette Eubanks, Vivian Fuller, Estelle Kenny, Nell Watson and Margaret Jackson. "Mirror," a Japanese story, will be read by Dorothy Collier.

No admission will be asked the mothers, and there will be no expense attached to the tea. Fruit punch and cake will be served.

As a definition of their Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserve program the girls will recite their reserve code to the mothers. Their slogan is "to face life squarely," their purpose, "to find and give the best."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE TROUBLE WITH ENTERTAINING

"The trouble with entertaining, the thing that makes it such a burden," says a letter friend who read my remarks on automobiles and summer cottages, "is that people will not do things as simply as they used to do. They want to have everything so much more elaborate, they want to put on so much front that they wear themselves out and don't get any fun out of the entertaining. It isn't so much the fault of the automobile that hospitality has become a problem and a burden to some people as it is the fault of the way we live nowadays."

There is a great deal of truth in that, isn't there?

We could have a lot more fun out of visiting, and being visited, if we didn't try so hard to put up a front, as she says.

When the Bills Come In

We could entertain more freely without worrying about the expense if we simply shared what we had instead of buying what we cannot afford and then being staggered when the bills come in.

A friend of mine had to sail very close to the wind during the peak of high prices as her husband was one of those many men in small executive positions who had no raises commensurate with the rise in cost of living (when the wages of any large class are forcibly raised beyond the level of their economic value it has to come out of someone else).

One day she told me that she had thought she would have to resign from the little neighborhood club of six couples who dined at each other's homes every two weeks. "If they would be willing," she explained, "to have a dinner such as they would naturally have, things would balance up. But they aren't willing to do that. They all insist on giving a costly dinner when it comes their turn. And yet some of them can't afford it any better than I."

Why It Costs So Much

It is the same way with week-end and longer visits. If we would simply take turns sharing our homes, the extra expense would be cancelled by a diminution in expense at some other time. But this is what happens. It is customary when people visit nowadays to carry a gift, candy or fruit or perhaps something for the house. When you return the visit, you do the same thing. Naturally, that adds considerably to the cost. Then you feel obliged to have a much better table than usual and when you return the visit your host does the same thing. Furthermore, you must take your guest to any and all entertainments which your neighborhood affords and when you return your visit your host must do likewise. When you come to total it all up an exchange of visits has cost you both goodly increases in your expenses.

An Artificial Life

And the same thing is true of time and effort as is true of money. Instead of allowing them to share your life while they are with you and doing the same while you are with them you each try to live an artificial life for the time being and consequently find the visit a tax, are tired when it is over and tell yourself you must cut down on entertaining.

In the old days people made much longer visits than they do today. But the way they managed was by making their guests part of the family. To be sure they gave the guest the best they had, brought out the best preserves, killed the chicken, gave him the most comfortable chair and the top of the cream, but they didn't try to live on an entirely different scale while he was with them.

A Wife on Leave

by INEZ KLUMPH

Illustrated by MARGUERITE DEAN

Who's Who and What's Happened.

Sally Drabant, a society butterfly, has been given a year's leave of absence by her husband, Richard Drabant, who hopes that she will learn something of life. She sees much of Keith Gilbert, not realizing that all New York is gossiping about them. She is horrified to learn that, despite his social position and apparent wealth, he is a boot-legger. Attempting to earn her own living, she secures a position as chambermaid to Claire Finch, who has more money than manners, and elopes with an adventurer, although she is in love with him.

Rex Mallory, a young millionaire, loses his heart to a little dancer, Rose Hewitt, whom Sally is befriending. Sally goes to a rehearsal at the Metropolitan Opera house, where she meets Barbara Lane, who is an old-fashioned wife, but is accepting the attentions of a young man, who is a successful young artist. Lee Craig, a successful young artist, is in love with Barbara. Hearing that her husband has returned from the west, Sally tries to reach him by telephone.

CHAPTER LXXXIV.

True Happiness.

Since the morning when they attended the dress rehearsal at the Metropolitan Opera house, when Barbara Lane so definitely turned from Barbara to Sally, and her mother-in-law, Sally had felt rather guilty about Babe.

She knew that this old friend was a true-hearted one, too sincere and honest with herself, to know at all, conclusions. And yet—might not Barbara feel that Sally had deliberately come between her and Graham Browne, just for her own amusement?

She found Wes-acre brilliant in its autumn coloring. Small, shaggy chrysanthemums lifted their yellow heads in the garden, and the purple corns rose high above them, with its airy leaves. A late rose bloomed near the small Colonial doorway. And across the Hudson the long, rolling hills were ablaze with scarlet and yellow. The river itself was deep blue as blue as the sky, and there lay over the landscape the soft haze of Indian summer, of deep quietude in the garden; preparing it for winter. She waved a towel at Sally, and came running to the little gate, enveloped in a creosote upon whose merrily hummed pulsed with paper labels, twine, and even bulbs.

"I'm so glad to see you!" she cried, as she kissed Sally. "I have news for you—wonderful news. Andy and I found our farm, and he's arranging about buying it today!"

"Oh Babe, truly!" Sally held her tight in both arms. "Tell me about it, you've wanted that farm always, haven't you?"

"Yes—and we've thought we never could have it. But Andy's business has gone so well—now, Graham Browne helped him about financing that patent, and of course kept a controlling interest in the company that was formed. It's not a bad thing for him too, you see. Andy has just sold, and he's expected to go right on working this time, but last night he and I had a long talk, and I told him that I'd rather have just him than anything else in the world. He said he'd supposed that I wanted to have a good time like—well, like you do you see, that night last spring when you and Neal Calhoun and he and I went to the theater and then to that dance club. I was awfully unhappy, when I got home; I felt so dowdy and old-fashioned and out of everything! And Andy—the darling!—remembered it, and felt that he hadn't made good because he hadn't given me all the frills that you had. So, that's why he worked so hard that I've hardly seen him at all."

"And now—well, Graham Browne took me out a bit, you know, and it all seemed so empty to me, somehow, after about a month of it! And I begged Andy to do things differently, and not try to make the moon and the world! We went farm hunting, and had the most marvelous luck—found just what we wanted the very first time. And we're buying it, and he's going to let the regular boys and girls' company and just keep his stock, and we're going to be farmers."

They had wandered into the living room, as they talked, and Sally, who had been at her charming homeliness. It was one of the most attractive rooms that she had ever seen, she thought.

"But what about this house—won't you hate to give it up?" she asked.

"Yes, of course, I will. But we can't have this and a farm, too, so we'll sell this place. Think, what will you do this winter—stay here in town?"

"I suppose so," Sally spoke slowly, as if her mind were on a record for children's performances in the United States, and mothers are urged to send their children to these performances, which are carefully chaperoned. The admission price of 10 cents is within reach of an entire family, and the pictures are selected with a view to pleasing children of all ages.

too—but it's just a bit lacking, somehow, unless she's doing that. And I don't want to do anything else but keep Andy's home and look after him. We're so thrilled over the farm—we're going to raise chickens—buy day-old chicks early in the spring and sell them along in the summer. There's lots of money in that; you sell your chicken before it's old enough for its food to be very expensive, and you can make a profit of a dollar a hen, when things break right—I mean, when feed isn't too expensive. And I'll have some geese—I love the way they waddle around, one right behind the other—and pigs, and ducks—and a few cows."

"Oh, Babe, I wish I wanted to be a farmer!" cried Sally, fired by her enthusiasm. "But I don't know anything about it. I'll never amount to anything, anyway. I don't even make a home for Dick—I just let him take care of me!"

"Perhaps you'll make one for him when this vacation of yours is over," suggested Barbara, quietly.

"Perhaps," agreed Sally. But in her mind she added, "If Dick wants me to—perhaps he won't."

Children's Matinee At Howard This Morning

Charles Ray in "The Sheriff's Son," a Burton Holmes travelogue, and a Mack Sennet comedy will comprise the program at the regular boys and girls' matinee at the Howard theater Saturday morning, sponsored by the better films committee of Atlanta.

In "The Sheriff's Son," Charles Ray does some of his best work. He plays opposite the lovely Colleen Moore. The picture contains a number of interesting and thrilling episodes, and runs about 15 minutes. As a boxer, Charles Ray wins in a stiff pugilistic combat and also wins in another combat—that of making love to the beautiful Colleen Moore, though, as usual, he performs this in a very bashful manner.

The better films committee is anxious to sustain the record for children's performances in the United States, and mothers are urged to send their children to these performances, which are carefully chaperoned. The admission price of 10 cents is within reach of an entire family, and the pictures are selected with a view to pleasing children of all ages.

Tea at Woman's Club.

The Atlanta Woman's club was the scene of an interesting social event on Friday, when the members entertained at the regular afternoon tea.

The guest of honor was that given in honor of Mrs. D. F. Stephenson by the study class, of which she is leader. Mrs. James Meegan, a popular visitor from Washington, was center figure in a party entertained by Mrs. Joseph Moody.

Mrs. Moody's guests were Mrs. Meegan, Mrs. Lucien Harris, Mrs. P. Allen, Mrs. E. M. Horne, Mrs. Henry Kuhn, Mrs. J. J. Lynch, Mrs. W. D. Williamson, Mrs. Norwood Mitchell, Mrs. E. W. Moore, Mrs. Stewart Stringfellow, Mrs. Annie Flynn and Miss Ida Ryan.

"Made-in-Georgia" Dinner To Be Elaborate Affair

One of the most brilliant affairs given in Atlanta recently will be the "Made-in-Georgia" dinner, to be staged at the chamber of commerce Wednesday evening, May 24, at 6:30 o'clock. Under the influence of inspiring music, brilliant speeches and beautiful flowers, and added to this brilliant assemblage of prominent men and women of Atlanta, the "Made-in-Georgia" dinner will mark an epoch in the industrial and agricultural enterprises of the city and state.

The menu has been carefully planned by experts, and exclusively Georgia products will be used. Following is the menu:

Fruit Cocktail
Roast Chicken with Dressing
Cranberry Sauce
English Peas
New Potatoes
Candied Yams
Hot Rolls
Combination Salad
Ice Cream
Dainties
Cake

Among the distinguished guests invited as speakers for the occasion are Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, Mayor James L. Key, Samuel Rothberg, president Atlanta Retail Merchants' association; Mrs. J. E. Hays, president Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. E. M. Boykin, president Atlanta Woman's club; H. G. Hastings, president Georgia association; Mrs. Alton Richardson, vice president Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. J. E. Hays, president Atlanta Woman's club; Mrs. Newton C. Wing, state chairman "Made-in-Georgia" campaign, and Mrs. Irving Thomas.

Mrs. Claude Frederic and Mrs. Clarence Copeage, co-chairmen for Fulton county, are official hostesses for the dinner. They will be assisted by Mrs. C. K. Ayer and Mrs. William Fisch.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Frederic and Mrs. Copeage will be the following ladies: Mrs. Norman Sharpe, chairman fifth district "Made-in-Georgia" campaign; Mrs. Joseph N. Moody and Mrs. Omar F. Elder, vice chairmen for fifth district; Mrs. I. Clarence Smullyan, secretary for fifth district; Mrs. R. M. Boykin, Mrs. Alton Richardson, Mrs. T. T. Stevens, Mrs. C. K. Ayer, Mrs. William Fisch, Mrs. John Yopp, Mrs. Worth Yanke and Mrs. Byron Patton.

Unique features at the dinner will be an exhibition of beautiful paintings and pictures by Georgia artists. These pictures will be displayed in the dining hall, and are mainly exhibited for the purpose of stimulating interest in local talent. Mrs. Edward T. Moore is chairman of the art display.

There will be an exhibit of beautiful furs, made from the Georgia panther. The mountain folks are gaining another industry, and because of the employment that these furs give to some of our Georgia mountain people this display will be peculiarly interesting.

Another exhibit that will cause a good deal of favorable comment is the "Dixie Dainties," which are food products manufactured from our Georgia products and the sweet potatoes. These products were originated by Mrs. Anne Stewart Flynn, who is a well-known clubwoman.

Tickets for the dinner will be $1 each. Many of the clubs and civic organizations are making reservations. Those wishing reservations, communicate with Mrs. Claude Frederic, Hemlock 341-W, or Mrs. Byron Patton, Hemlock 688-J.

North Carolina Society Gives Dinner at Club

A brilliant event of Friday evening was the dinner given at the Capital City club by the North Carolina Society. The affair was the annual banquet gathering together all North Carolinians, including the members of the Ladies Auxiliary Society, who are always special guests of the occasion.

The ballroom of the club was elaborately decorated in red, pink, roses, and French baskets of the same lovely blossoms adorned the tables.

During the dinner the guests were entertained by a very interesting program consisting of theatrical stunts, short speeches, songs and dances. One of the principal features was a dance by Miss Eugenia Snow.

Dr. E. G. Ballenger is president of the society and Murphy Holloway is secretary.

Officers of the North Carolina Women's Society are Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, president; Mrs. C. L. Fuller, first vice president; Mrs. C. L. Fuller, second vice president; Mrs. R. A. Shope, corresponding secretary; Mrs. G. Gillespie, treasurer; Mrs. T. T. Ballenger, official hostess; Miss Adelaide Everhart, artist.

For Misses Cassels And Garrison.

Mrs. Joseph G. Heard's afternoon tea on Friday was a pretty compliment to Miss Martha Louise Cassels, whose marriage will be an interesting social event of June, and to Miss Marguerite Garrison, who is the guest of Miss Cassels.

The home was lovely with decorations of summer flowers in shades of pink and lavender. Pink roses, lavender and pink were also the colors used in the adornment of the lace-covered tea table. In the center was a mound of pink and lavender sweet peas, with pink and lavender and lavender iris. Pink candles in silver holders and pink and lavender mints in silver compotes were other pretty details of decoration.

Mrs. Kirk Smith and Miss Marian Dean served punch on the terrace. Assisting in entertaining were Misses Harriet Tupper, Louise Nelson, Lula Grove, Campbell, Dorothy Haverty and Mrs. Van Hamilton Burgin.

Mrs. Heard was gowned in a pale blue georgette with pink and lavender with crystals and fashioned over silver blue metal cloth.

Mrs. Beverly DuBoise Hostess to Visitors.

In compliment to Mrs. Robert Woodruff of New York, the guest of Mrs. Bolling Jones, Jr., and to Mrs. William Robinson Brown, of Berlin, N. H., who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary Gordon-Smith, Mrs. Beverly DuBoise entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Piedmont Driving club.

The lace-covered luncheon table had a most effective decoration in red poppies. The candles, mints and lace further carried out the color scheme of red.

Mrs. DuBoise was beautifully gowned in hyacinth blue georgette with hat to match.

Mrs. Brown wore blue crepe with a black belt.

Mrs. Woodruff's pretty costume was of blue crepe.

The guests included eight friends of the hostess.

Annual Debate At Seminary.

The annual debate between the literary society of the Washington seminary will take place tonight, in the auditorium of the school.

The girls representing this society are Isabel Breitenbacher, Elizabeth Dunwood, Harriet Shelden, Elizabeth Holleman, alternate.

The Alice Chancellors will represent the negative. Those debating will be Ellen Newell, Ruth McMillan, Allison Lonsdale, alternate, Cordie Lee, alternate. Miss Mildred Davis is sponsor for the Scotchmen; Mrs. Irene Stark is sponsor for the Chancellors.

The public is invited.

Hoosier Club Holds Cake Sale.

The Hoosier Ladies' club will hold a cake sale all day today at Kenny's Tea store on Broad street.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Preserve the Shine. Dishes will hold their luster if the are washed by hand in hot water instead of put into the oven to heat.

Precaution. Never paint an exposed nail or pin within reach of a human being, animal without removing or picking it up.

A Splendid Duster. Soak a soft chambray in cold water and then wring it out tightly. It will make an excellent duster, removing finger marks and leaving no lint.

Fire Precaution. If your curtains are close to a gas jet and there is a possibility of the wind blowing them into the flames, save all anxiety and sew small lead weights into the seam at the bottom.

Culinary Quips. Never flavor a boiled custard with cold.

Salt and vinegar will remove stains from tea-cloth. The vinegar should be absorbed first.

To prevent gloss coming off with paint wash it with milk and very dry the surface.

To remove the odor of onions from a little vinegar into the frying pan while it is still hot.

A Delusion. (From Judge.) "Mother, what is conscience?" "I don't believe there is any such thing, or I'd have received some from the intelligence office long ago."

Handicapped. (From Judge.) "I've had a hard day at the office, dear, and I'm hungry as a bear. Dinner ready?" "No, love, I'm afraid I'll have to go to a restaurant tonight. I've been the can-opener."

POSSES SEARCHING FOR OTHER NEGRO

Davaboro, Ga., May 19.—Acting on the dying statement that Charlie Atkins is said to have made, describing that John Henry Tarver shot Mrs. Elizabeth Kitchens, officers today are making efforts to find Tarver, a 19-year-old negro. They are using track dogs.

Early today Jim Atkins was taken to Sandersville and lodged in the jail on suspicion. He is a brother of the dead negro. Gainer Atkins and his wife, father and stepmother of the mob victim, also are held by the sheriff.

Tarver left Wadley ten days ago. It was stated, under two warrants charging robbery of the store and United States mails. He is said to have spent the night at Atkins' home and the theory is that the two plotted the robbery of Mrs. Kitchens. Mrs. Kitchens' pistol and a $10 money order have never been found.

Saw Three Negroes.

A United States postoffice inspector arrived here today and has begun a rigid investigation of the murder. A white girl, Miss Bailey, who lives near the scene of the tragedy states that she heard the shots fired which killed Mrs. Kitchens and saw the car about three hundred yards down the road from her mail box as she was getting her mail, and states positively that there were three negroes around the car at this time.

This bears out the statement made by Atkins before meeting his death yesterday that three were implicated in the murder.

Mrs. Kitchens' funeral was held this afternoon at the Baptist church, officiated by Rev. B. D. Hodges, of Summerville, her former pastor, assisted by Rev. G. F. Tyner, pastor here. There was the largest attendance of any funeral ever held here. Interment followed in Davaboro cemetery.

Tells of Crime.

Before his death Atkins is said to have told the mob that Tarver, another negro, was implicated in the crime, but after searching for Tarver for several hours, the quest was abandoned.

At sunset yesterday the body of Atkins hung suspended from a tree at the scene of Mrs. Kitchens' death. It was riddled with bullets and partly burned. Marks of earlier flogging were visible.

Sheriff English, of Washington county, and the Rev. A. P. Segars, made fruitless appeals to prevent the lynching. Sheriff English pleads yesterday for the killing of Mrs. William Kitchens, and their son, known as "Slim," were lodged in the Bibb county jail here tonight for safe keeping.

In Bibb Jail.

Macon, Ga., May 19.—Gainer Atkins and his wife, parents of Charlie Atkins, lynched in Washington county yesterday for the killing of Mrs. William Kitchens, and their son, known as "Slim," were lodged in the Bibb county jail here tonight for safe keeping.

GOLDEN JUBILEE PROVES SUCCESS

The following schools take part: Peoples Street, Lucile Avenue, Calhoun, Luckie, North Avenue and Greenwood. The dance costumes are works of real ingenuity, as are those used in an Uncle Remus tableaux, in which the various animal characters appear.

The Famous R's.

Establishment of a school system in Atlanta which specialized in the three famous R's, and the subsequent introduction in the curriculum of the fine arts is shown in the second episode.

Physical training and domestic science courses are later inaugurated, and the union of school and community in civic organizations for boys and girls is shown. The passage of the school bonds in 1921 is hailed as the most significant event in the five decades of school history.

Schools added to the system during each decade are indicated by representatives who carry school banners across the stage.

In the final episode, Prophecy sees a vision. The children of the future are awakened to the true significance of education. Drawn by Liberty's torch, immigrants kneel before Education. On the Children of the Future, from the Kingdom of the Mind and Head, are bestowed choice gifts. But the crowning blessing is theirs when the rich and the poor alike are united by Education and the children of all nations gather at her feet. A professional of all participants and a teacher of the performance.

Only one more opportunity will be given the Atlanta public for witnessing the pageant. The Saturday afternoon performance will begin at 2:30 o'clock. Tickets may be obtained at the Auditorium box office.

Beautiful Oriental Rugs Featured Home Exposition

Display recently made at Taft hall by Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company, admired by many.

One of the many pretty attractions at the recent "Own Your Home" exposition was that of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. in Taft hall, where a great array of handsome Oriental rugs was displayed. The display drew thousands of visitors who were loud in their praises of the beautiful and costly showing of floor covering.

"By constantly advertising and keeping the Oriental rug before the eyes of the public," said an official of this big department store on Friday, "we have created a real desire for this handsome floor covering."

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.)

The show the last three days of the week at Keith's Lyric theater, is pleasingly entertaining from opening to closing number. The headline feature is amply taken care of by Princess Radjah in her original dance creation, "The Dance of Cleopatra." It shows the real artist that she is. She uses a pet snake that she playfully teases and finally permits to bite her, from which she dies, when suddenly she sees the snake in the "Arabian Chair Dance," she holds a chair between her teeth, and executes a dance of wild abandon.

Zuhn and Dreis, who bill themselves Demented Americans, are two of the most thoroughly enjoyable eccentric comedians that have appeared at the Lyric.

Doris Duncan, a petite little miss, offers a delightful concoction of popular songs, piano selections and a little talk that is most pleasing and enjoyable.

Loew Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.)

A highly entertaining bill of high class vaudeville and a specially selected program of motion picture features is being presented at Loew's Grand theater today and tonight. Four complete shows will be given, starting at 2, 4, 7 and 9 p. m. The headline being Phil Green and Girls, in a synopsized musical offering, in which a great deal of clean comedy is provided by Mr. Green. The girls in the company are talented singers and dancers, and assist greatly in the success of the act.

An excellent quartet is on the program in the Criterion Four. The voices harmonize and the songs offered are all good.

Other acts are Gordon and Healy in an original satire, "Wedded Bliss," Andy and Louise Barlow, in a comic dancing, and the Le Belge Duo, in novelty balancing and acrobatic feats.

The feature of the screen bill is the Robertson-Cole special production, "Possession."

property difficulties were at the bottom of the affair.

T. Hicks Fort, of Columbus, one of the counsel for the defense, stated tonight that "when the public understands the situation and condition I think there will be no trouble in Mrs. Humber being entirely vindicated."

Mr. Fort and George C. Palmer, of Columbus, and H. A. Perrell, of Seale, are attorneys for the defense.

Russell County Prosecuting Attorney B. Deg Waddell is expected to conduct the prosecution at the preliminary hearing. The defense counsel, it was stated tonight, will attempt at the hearing to have the case discharged or at least to secure bail for Mrs. Humber. It is expected that the hearing will be held next week in Seale. The funeral services of Mr. Humber, who died last night, will be held Saturday morning from St. Luke Methodist church here.

C. D. GIBSON IS HELD ON FORGERY CHARGE

C. D. Gibson, of Kirkwood, was arrested Friday night by Detective A. G. Stone, on a charge of forgery. It is alleged that Gibson attempted to pass a check for $47.50 on the Fourth National bank, with the signature of Dr. G. T. Brockett. The forgery was crudely done and the teller at the bank became suspicious and called the police. It is said that Gibson formerly was employed by Dr. Brockett.

The fatal shooting occurred in the Humber home on the plantation about a mile west of Columbus in Alabama. Mrs. Humber stated that she and her children had been previously threatened by her husband. She said that her husband appeared at the door of the room with a pistol in his hand threatening her life and that she made an attempt to wrench the revolver from his hand. A scuffle followed, she continued, and the shots were fired.

Mrs. Humber spoke of old troubles that had existed, intimating that

Daring Hold-Up Foiled by Clever Postal Inspector

New York, May 19.—A gigantic postoffice holdup surpassing in spectacularity and daring any of the recent registered mail thefts of the million dollar-and-up class, would have been perpetrated at the city hall postoffice tomorrow but for the keen work of a postoffice inspector who grew a bad man's beard, consorted with the plotters and uncovered their scheme.

This was the statement today by Postoffice Inspector Doran in making public the details of the arrest of seven men—six of them present or postoffice employees. He asserted their capture would clear up the registered mail theft of July 19, when $1,477,000 in Liberty bonds bound for Washington were stolen from the mails; would aid in solving a heretofore undisclosed theft of $40,000 in securities addressed to Watertown, N. Y., and might go far toward clearing up the $200,000 mail truck holdup in lower Broadway last October.

Plans had been laid—and were to be carried out in broad daylight—for the holdup and robbery of the entire registered mail section of the city hall station, through which millions in securities flow daily from the west wall street financial district, Inspector Doran said. Orders had been issued to shoot any employee who resisted.

Planned Every Detail.

The plotters had visited the city hall station several times made a careful survey of the "layout" and planned their raid in great detail. Indeed, Inspector Doran said, they had gone to the station several times to "pull" the holdup, but had been deterred by the accidental presence of several inspectors, which had led them to fear their plot had been discovered. It was the imminence of the new date set for the holdup that sent police and postoffice inspectors on a round-up campaign last night.

The heaviest man, it was said, succeeded in getting himself "counted in" on the proposed city hall station holdup, and talked over in detail with the others in his supposed "den" which he had wired with telephonic devices. The seven captives taken last night were confronted with transcripts of the telephonic record early today in the presence of the new date set for the holdup that sent police and postoffice inspectors on a round-up campaign last night.
